NATION TO HONOR ITS WAR DEAD

Noise Almost Deafening as Cicadas Move In

South Tip of Fayette County Crawls with 17-Year Locusts

By B. E. KELLEY
The extreme southern tip of Fayette County is crawling with 17-year locusts, but the infestation is limited to that area.
Starting a few days ago the locusts suddenly appeared by the millions in the lower part of the county, and over most of the southern hill counties. Billions of the insects are now making life almost unbearable with their noise—almost a roar in some sections.
In the meantime hogs, birds and fish are feasting on the unusual insects which had spent 17 years under ground and then all came forth within 48 hours time. As the locusts (or cicada—pronounced si-ka-da with accent on syllable and a broad "A") emerge from the ground they crawl up trees, bushes, buildings, posts and anywhere else they can cling. The locust proper comes forth from the shell and as soon as its wings are dry, is ready to fly, leaving the old shells in countless numbers clinging to the object on which the transformation took place.

TUESDAY I was in southern Fayette County checking on the insects, and was amazed to learn how sharply the line of the infestation and non-infestation was drawn. I had halted many times enroute to listen, for I have heard the noisy cicada at various places and times since I was a boy, and knew I would instantly recognize the noise.
I stopped at Chester Zimmerman's home on the Zimmerman Rd. No locusts.
My next stop on the Zimmerman Rd. was at the bridge over Rattlesnake Creek. No locusts.
At the Victor Little home on Zimmerman Rd. east of Rattlesnake, I was told that there had been no locusts there.
Heading east I turned south and entered the Fishback Rd. and drove southwest past the R. M. (Please Turn to Page Sixteen)

Cuban Chieftain Battles Rebels On 3 Fronts

Batista Claims 35 Plotters Captured; Power Lines Severed

HAVANA (AP)—President Fulgenio Batista's forces have admitted rebel opposition on three fronts. The government nabbed 35 plotters in central Cuba and claimed 16 casualties in the north-east.

A large part of the capital remained without electric power as a result of Tuesday's underground explosion, which blacked out much of Havana's electric system. A second blast went off Tuesday night near the home of Cabinet Minister Andrew Domingo Morales, but no damage was reported.

Batista issued a warning that all the dynamite his enemies could muster would not be enough "to interrupt our patriotic plans to assure the people their progress and their liberties."

Batista forces clashed with insurgents Tuesday near Holguin, in northeast Cuba; near Manzanillo, in the southeast, and at Cienfuegos, in the central province of Las Villas.

An army communique said the Holguin action involved a rebel group which landed at Cabonico Bay last Thursday from the Florida-based yacht Corinthia. It said there were 16 rebel casualties and the rest of the band was being pursued.

ORIGINAL reports said 25 men had landed from the Corinthia and five had been captured within a few hours. The remainder were said to have been heading for the Sierra Cristal Mountains of north-east Cuba. Farmers in the area indicated the band was growing, saying they had seen more than 100 well-armed men.

The Manzanillo skirmish reportedly involved forces of insurgent leader Fidel Castro, who has been operating in the nearby Sierra Maestra range since landing from Mexico last December. The army said both sides suffered casualties.

The 35 plotters were reported arrested at Cienfuegos. Interior Minister Santiago Rey said they were surprised at a secret meeting and taken after a gunfight but that there were no casualties.

He hoped that they were preparing to move into the central Cuban mountains, emulating Castro's guerrillas.

The Cuban Electricity Co. worked furiously to restore service in Havana but said power service might not be restored until Thursday. Authorities blamed the explosion, which occurred eight blocks from the national capitol on sabotage.

Berserk Sailor Is Subject Of Navy Psychiatric Study

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Naval psychiatrists tried to determine today what sent a normally mild seaman on a murderous six-hour armed mutiny Tuesday.

One officer was killed and another seriously wounded. The sudden burst of gunfire turned the attack cargo transport Uvalde into an armed camp.

Seaman Jimmie L. Henderson, 21, Marine City, Calif., said he killed because he was convicted of stealing a $30 watch. Apparently without remorse, he talked freely of his resentment, his planning and the killing. Then he was taken to Oak Knoll Naval Hospital in Oakland.

The bespectacled sailor slugged guard Joseph H. Veerbeek, 22, on the Uvalde at a Treasure Island dock in San Francisco Bay, seized his automatic and killed Ens. Arthur L. Morris, 26, Stow, Ohio.

Morris was shot in the head as he sat on the edge of his bunk. "He caused all the trouble," Henderson said.

HE SAID Morris had reported Henderson stole a watch. The seaman said he found it. Henderson was convicted at a court-martial Monday, sentenced to four months at hard labor and demoted from disbursing clerk third class to seaman. He was confined to ship pending review of his case.

Shot three times through the stomach and arm, because "he was in the way," was Ens. Richard D. Harrison, 22, Grand Rapids, Mich., Morris' cabin mate. He was Henderson's defense counsel.

The seemingly mild-mannered killer said, "I feel like Mr. Morris needed it."

For eight months he had worked directly under Morris, who was both the ship's paymaster and legal officer.

After the shooting Henderson fled to the bridge where he held the pistol cocked and loaded for more than six hours while trying to make up his mind to surrender. Watching him from the bridge, the ship's mast and the dock were more than a dozen sailors and Marines armed with riot guns or pistols.

During the strange six-hour armed stalemate, Henderson's mother, two chaplains, the Marine commander on Treasure Island Naval Base, the captain, two MP sergeants and others argued with Henderson to give up peacefully.

He finally surrendered on the promise he would be taken from the ship as the personal prisoner of Marine Col. E. M. Williams, and be given both civilian and naval counsel.

Two More Unknown Soldiers To Join World War I Hero

By GROVER BRINKMAN
Central Press Assn.

This May 30 will be the last time that Americans will gather at Arlington National Cemetery to honor the Unknown Soldier of World War I, resting beneath the stately, marble tomb we know so well.

By Memorial Day of 1958, Congress plans to remodel this famous monument so it will accommodate two more unknown soldiers, one from World War II and one from the Korean conflict. Their bodies will be moved from U. S. military cemeteries abroad, and reinterred at Arlington with special ceremonies set for next May 30.

Some have objected to Congress's plan for opening the beautiful tomb and changing its design. However, in a way, it is fitting and proper that the unidentified dead of World War II and Korea have a monument.

For besides the Arlington memorial to the Unknown Soldier of World War I, America has several other tombs of unknown heroes who fell in other conflicts. These other monuments, in scattered locations, are almost as unknown as the men to whom they were erected!

Closest to Arlington is the nation's first tomb of the unknown soldier, known to few of us today, but sacred to the memory of one who died to attain the country's independence. This is the monument to the Unknown Soldier of the American Revolution, situated in a lonely churchyard in Alexandria, Va.

THIS MONUMENT was erected in a quiet corner of the churchyard of Alexandria's Old (Presbyterian) Meeting house, where funeral services were conducted for the unknown hero's commander, Gen. George Washington.

As the years passed, the old colonial meeting house deteriorated, and in 1866, it had to be closed. However, recently, public contributions enabled the building to be repaired, and opened again.

In his faded coat of blue, stands a seldom-noticed, rough stone monument erected to the memory of the Unknown Soldier of the War of 1812. On it is this inscription:

May brave lad he sleeps
In his faded coat of blue,
In his lonely grave unknown
Lies the heart that beat so true.

Incidentally, a marble plaque at the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., honors an American soldier who has been purposely made "unknown."

Though Benedict Arnold lived for another 20 years, in the heart of America he died in 1780, the year in which he betrayed West Point to the British.

THE PLAQUE was put in the Old Chapel at the academy in honor of Benedict Arnold the Revolutionary War officer who turned traitor. Later Arnold's name was gouged out of the plaque because of his disloyalty. Today the stone bears only the words:

"Major General" and "Born 1740."

THE ENTRY was given in the entry filed with the clerk of courts about 4:30 p. m. Tuesday.

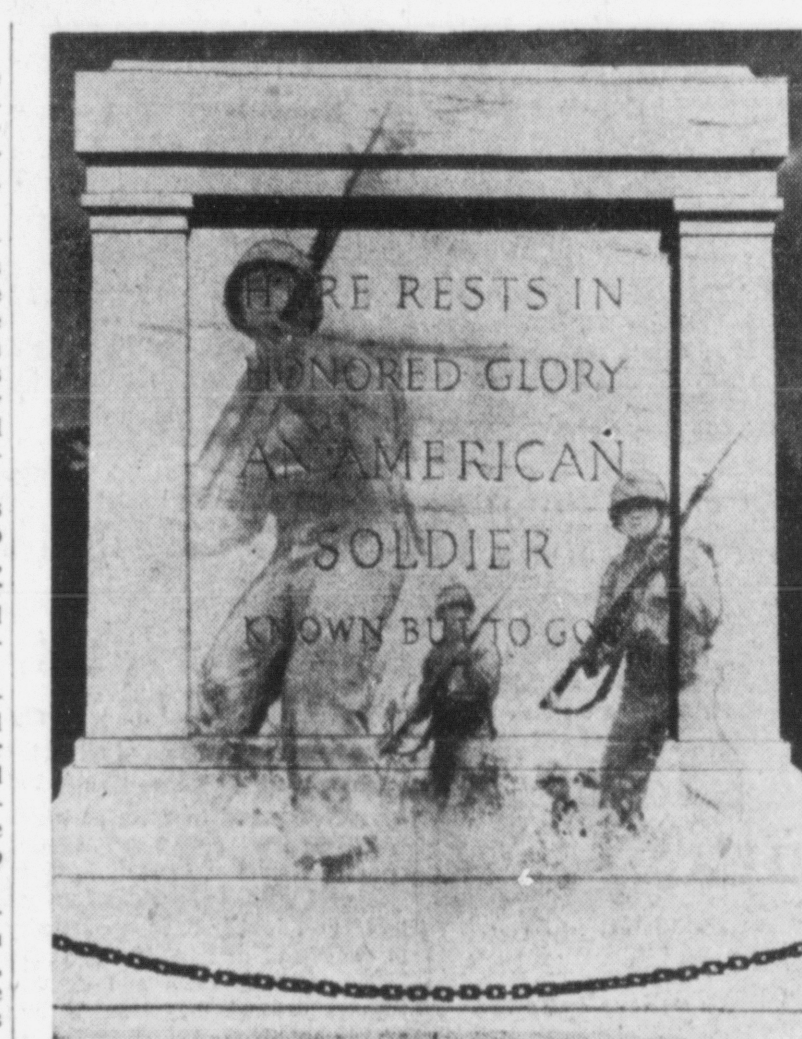

It was based only on the testimony given by witnesses at a hearing Monday on Morrow's motion for a new trial. The hearing, which started at mid-afternoon, continued until 9 o'clock that night.

IN HIS ENTRY Judge Case found that the failure of E. J. Cunningham, member of the jury which granted the verdict for the plaintiff, to disclose that he had been a member of the Rural Parents Assn. and that the plaintiff's attorney, F. Scott Zimmerman, had acted in a legal capacity for the RPA, as well as other facts and circumstances showing the interest and activities of the juror and the attorney concerning the Fayette County school controversy, constituted misconduct which was grounds for granting a new trial.

THE ENTRY says:

"The Court, coming now to consider defendant's motion for a new trial, and limiting its consideration thereof solely to the first and second grounds enumerated and set forth in said motion, do find that, under all of the facts and circumstances surrounding the conduct of plaintiff's counsel during closing argument before the jury within the hearing of the jury, as well as at the bench within the sight but out of the hearing of the jury, was such as to be unduly prejudicial to said defendant; and that, by reason thereof, defendant's motion for a new trial upon the ground of misconduct of the prevailing party is well made and should be granted; but that such new trial should be had only in the event of a reversal of a judgment for defendant notwithstanding the verdict which was heretofore entered by the court in this cause on May 7, 1957;

"And the court, coming to consider the second ground of said motion for new trial based upon defendant's summer series.

3 Columbus Men Get Terms for Theft Try

COLUMBUS (AP)—Three Columbus men were sentenced Tuesday in federal court to prison terms attempting to burglarize the Ohio Federal Savings and Loan Co. in Upper Arlington.

Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood sentenced Ralph Neil, 28, and Otis McGhee, 33, to 10 years each and Lester Burrell, Jr., 35, to eight years.

The boys Jackie McDorman 7, and Steven Waldo 6, had been playing with a hammer in the car police said. Police theorized that the hammer caused a spark which ignited gasoline fumes in the car and that the flames spread to the 5-gallon can of gasoline in the rear seat.

Memorial Day Rites Booked Across Nation

Millions To Observe Holiday with Trips; Traffic To Kill Many

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
As they have for four score and nine years, Americans Thursday will summon reverence and remembrance for the dead of the nation's wars.

Memorial Day was established May 30, 1868, by officers of the Grand Army of the Republic. The savage Civil War that racked the young nation for four years was fresh in their minds. Now the day has come to mean a time to pause and remember those who gave their lives in all our wars, from the Revolution to Korea.

Veterans groups, Boy Scouts and others will march in parades. They will hear rifle-crack salutes fired over graves, some almost fresh, some very old. They will hear Taps blown on a bugle.

Many will feel fresh grief as they lay wreaths and flowers on graves of soldiers they had loved.

For millions of others the holiday will signal a great exodus on highways and trains, heading for a picnic or a visit. The weather forecast is fair and mild for most of the nation. Before the four-day weekend is over many new deaths will be added to the toll of war, but they will be auto traffic deaths. The National Safety Council predicts 120 Americans will die on the highways Thursday.

At the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery, ceremonies will be held in the amphitheater. Secretary of the Air Force Donald Quarles will speak. A presidential wreath will be laid at the tomb.

Among the other observances will be those at Antietam National Battlefield Site, Maryland; Battle-ground National Cemetery, Washington, D. C.; Gettysburg National Cemetery; Home of Franklin D. Roosevelt National Historic Site, Hyde Park, N. Y.; and Independence National Historical Park, Pennsylvania.

There is a place called the Cathedral of the Pines at Rindge, N. H., and many will gather there on the hilltop before the "Altar of the Nation."

This altar, so recognized by Congress as a memorial to America's war dead, is built of stones from over the country.

Gen. Joshua W. Sill, Civil War hero, will be honored at Memorial Day services at his resting place, in Chillicothe, Ohio here and at Ft. Sill, Okla.

Gen. Sill was killed by a sniper's bullet Dec. 31, 1862, at the battle of Stone's River, Murfreesboro, Tenn. He was 31.

Unveiling a bronze plaque on Gen. Sill's grave at the Chillicothe cemetery will be Brig. Gen. Ralph R. Mace, deputy commanding general of Ft. Chaffee, Ark., and a native of Chillicothe, and Mrs. Grace Douglas Johnson, grand niece of Gen. Sill.

The Mount Vernon Fife and Drum Corps will also participate. The American Legion will decorate the grave of a Confederate veteran who lies beside Sill.

At Ft. Sill, Okla., which was named by Gen. Philip Sheridan in honor of his West Point classmate, a granite memorial to Sill will be unveiled on the fort's old parade ground.

Slayer of Father Is Given Sentence

COSHOCTON (AP)—Common Pleas Court Judge Lloyd S. Leach Tuesday sentenced Robert E. Ishmael of Coshocton to a 120-year term at the Mansfield Reformatory for first degree manslaughter.

Ishmael 28 was convicted last week in the fatal shooting of his father, John 46 at Roscoe about one mile west of here.

The shooting followed a drinking party at a friend's home.

Planning More Travel

LOUISVILLE Ky. (AP)—Edward Walsh spent four years and traveled 40,000 miles before receiving his diploma.

The 40,000 miles is the distance he traveled during his high school career to and from his home 24 miles from Trinity High School. What's he going to do now? Why enroll at the University of Louisville—about 10 miles farther from home of course.

Adenauer Stand Chills Hope for Inspection Pact

WASHINGTON (AP)—The possibility of negotiating with Russia a disarmament inspection zone in Europe appeared to be virtually ruled out today by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's opposition to including German territory.

Such a zone, along with one in the northern Pacific area, has been discussed in disarmament talks under way in London as part of a "first-step" agreement involving Russia and the U. S.

Adenauer told a news conference Tuesday that a first-step agreement on disarmament is primarily a program for the United States and Russia. It "would not serve a useful purpose" he added to apply initial aerial inspection to Germany.

He said that any first-step treaty with the Russians should avoid reductions of manpower and weapons in Europe. Those measures he said should be left for a later comprehensive pact which would deal also with world wide military cutbacks and global control of nuclear weapons.

SINCE GERMANY is the key country in the heart of Europe and since Germany's consent would be a requirement of any disarmament agreement affecting its territory the prospect for any such agreement virtually disappeared under Adenauer's opposition. That situation would be changed only if his position turned out to be more flexible than his words indicated or should be modified in the light of future events.

The German leader winding up was scheduled to take off for Germany late today after a round of ceremonial activities.

Adenauer completed his conference with President Eisenhower Tuesday.

In a joint communique the two urged Soviet leaders to agree to a first-step disarmament plan to create "a degree of confidence" in Russia's intentions.

They said the limited plan could lead later to a "comprehensive disarmament agreement" but they agreed that any such step "must necessarily pre-suppose a prior solution of the problem of German reunification."

The communique disclosed that Adenauer had urged the President to plan on a four-power foreign ministers conference on German reunification after the conclusion of an initial disarmament pact. This would involve the United States Britain France and Russia.

Lower Dairy Price Guarantee Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson is expected to propose soon that the government's dairy price support program be overhauled to permit lower price guarantees.

Under present law the department must support prices between 75 and 90 per cent of parity. Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to price charged them.

The secretary is expected to propose that the law be changed to permit supports to be set at deemed advisable between zero and 90 per cent of parity.

Ohio JP Courts To Die on Jan. 1

COLUMBUS (AP)—After next Jan. 1, the term "justice of the peace" will belong to history.

After 170 years as a part of Ohio's judicial system, "JP" courts will pass out of the picture.

The Ohio Senate, 27-6, wrote the final chapter to the tumultuous history of the justice of the peace (or squire) courts Tuesday night on the next-to-last day of the 102nd General Assembly session.

Effective next Jan. 1, in counties which do not have municipal courts with country wide jurisdiction, the 516 remaining JP courts will be replaced by new county courts created on the basis of population and need.

Some say the squires brought their destruction upon themselves. Some operated speed traps with their constables and gouged an irate public. An indignant Legislature two years ago took the JPs off the fee system, only to be told by the Supreme Court a few weeks ago that the new law permitting county commissioners to set the squires' salaries was unconstitutional.

THAT DECISION, in the lawmakers' minds, made approval of the county court system a "must." Until the county courts can be established next year, the justices of the peace who continue to serve will receive neither fees nor salaries.

Rubber Plane Is Inflated, Flies Just Fine

OLATHE, Kan. (AP)—Richard Ulm unfolded a rubber airplane from a bundle a little bigger than a TV set, inflated it with compressed air, affixed the small wooden propeller, reeved up the engine and took off into the wild black yonder.

Ulm is a pilot for the Goodyear Aircraft Division at Akron and his first public demonstration of the firm's "Inflatoplane" was staged at the Olathe Naval Air Station Tuesday for the benefit of the Aviation Writers Assn.

The plane is formed of fabric which somewhat resembles rubber mattress material. It has a 23-foot wingspread when inflated and weighs around 200 pounds. The Goodyear people said its 44-horsepower engine can haul it through the air at better than 60 miles an hour and uses so little fuel it can stay aloft eight hours. It has attained altitudes higher than a mile. The cost: between $3,000 and $5,000.

A thunderstorm was sweeping the air base when Ulm went on his demonstration spin. Lightning flashed all around. He had no trouble.

A Navy ground crewman said: "I've seen it and I still don't believe it."

As the Legislature drove toward what it hoped would be a nearly and orderly windup of its working sessions tonight, there were other major developments:

The Senate passed a House-approved bill appropriating nearly $414 million for state subsidies—including $365 million for the public schools under an expanded foundation program.
The Senate also stamped "approved" on a House bill to increase the salaries of lower-paid state employees by more than $134 million in the next two years.
The House passed a Senate-approved bill authorizing construction of a new state office building in Columbus at a cost of $15 million.
The House defeated, then reconsidered and passed, a Senate bill setting a one per cent ceiling on city income taxes unless voters approve a higher rate.
The House defeated a Senate-approved resolution asking Congress to set the machinery in motion which would permit adoption of an amendment to the U.S. Constitution limiting income and inheritance taxes. The measure had squeezed through the Senate with no votes to spare and was defeated in the House, 58-64, with 84 favorable votes needed.
THE HOUSE passed a Senate-approved bill reserving the old governor's mansion at 1234 E. Broad St., Columbus, as an historical shrine and as a depository for important state papers and documents. Under terms of the bill, another building may be erected on the three-acre site in the future to accommodate the State Library and the Ohioana Library.
The Senate agreed to House amendments to a bill requiring parents to post up to $500 bond to guarantee against future acts of vandalism by their children.

Batista Claims 35 Plotters Captured; Power Lines Severed
HAVANA (AP)—President Fulgencio Batista's forces have admitted rebel opposition on three fronts. The government nabbed 35 plotters in central Cuba and claimed 16 casualties in the north-east.
A large part of the capital remained without electric power as a result of Tuesday's underground explosion, which blacked out much of Havana's electric system. A second blast went off Tuesday night near the home of Cabinet Minister Andrew Domingo Morales, but no damage was reported.
Batista issued a warning that all the dynamite his enemies could muster would not be enough "to interrupt our patriotic plans to assure the people their progress and their liberties."
Batista forces clashed with insurgents Tuesday near Holguin, in northeast Cuba; near Manzanillo, in the southeast, and at Cienfuegos, in the central province of Las Villas.
An army communique said the Holguin action involved a rebel group which landed at Cabaico Bay last Thursday from the Florida-based yacht Corinthia. It said there were 16 rebel casualties and the rest of the band was being pursued.
ORIGINAL reports said 25 men had landed from the Corinthia and five had been captured within a few hours. The remainder were said to have been heading for the Sierra Cristal Mountains of northeast Cuba. Farmers in the area indicated the band was growing, saying they had seen more than 100 well-armed men.
The Manzanillo skirmish reportedly involved forces of insurgent leader Fidel Castro, who has been operating in the nearby Sierra Maestra range since landing from Mexico last December. The army said both sides suffered casualties.
The 35 plotters were reported arrested at Cienfuegos. Interior Minister Santiago Rey said they were surprised at a secret meeting and taken after a gunfight but that there were no casualties.
He opined that they were preparing to move into the central Cuban mountains, emulating Castro's guerrillas.
The Cuban Electricity Co. worked furiously to restore service in Havana but said power service might not be restored until Thursday. Authorities blamed the explosion, which occurred eight blocks from the national capitol on sabotage.

Two More Unknown Soldiers To Join World War I Hero

By GROVER BRINKMAN
Central Press Assn.
This May 30 will be the last time that Americans will gather at Arlington National Cemetery to honor the Unknown Soldier of World War I, resting beneath the stately, marble tomb we know so well.
By Memorial Day of 1958, Congress plans to remodel this famous monument so it will accommodate two more unknown soldiers, one from World War II and one from the Korean conflict. Their bodies will be moved from U. S. military cemeteries abroad, and reinterred at Arlington with special ceremonies set for next May 30.
Some have objected to Congress's plan for opening the beautiful tomb and changing its design. However, in a way, it is fitting and proper that the unidentified dead of World War II and Korea have a monument.
For besides the Arlington memorial to the Unknown Soldier of World War I, America has several other tombs of unknown heroes who fell in other conflicts. These other monuments, in scattered locations, are almost as unknown as the men to whom they were erected.
Closest to Arlington is the nation's first tomb of the unknown soldier, known to few of us today, but sacred to the memory of one who died to attain the country's independence. This is the monument to the Unknown Soldier of the American Revolution, situated in a lonely churchyard in Alexandria, Va.
THIS MONUMENT was erected in a quiet corner of the churchyard of Alexandria's Old (Presbyterian) Meeting house, where funeral services were conducted for the unknown hero's commander, Gen. George Washington.
As the years passed, the old colonial meeting house deteriorated, and in 1866, it had to be closed. However, recently, public contributions enabled the building to be repaired, and opened again.

The tomb of the Unknown Soldier as it appears today. Superimposed are World War II soldiers in action.

In the little town of Avon, N. Y., stands a seldom-noticed, rough stone monument erected to the memory of the Unknown Soldier of the War of 1812. On it is this inscription:
May brave lad he sleeps
In his faded coat of blue,
In his lonely grave unknown
Lies the heart that beat so true.
Incidentally, a marble plaque at the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., honors an American soldier who has been purposely made "unknown."

THIS PLAQUE was put in the Old Chapel at the academy in honor of Benedict Arnold the Revolutionary War officer who turned traitor. Later Arnold's name was gouged out of the plaque because of his disloyalty. Today the stone bears only the words:
"Major General" and "Born 1740."
Though Benedict Arnold lived for another 20 years, in the heart of America he died in 1780, the year in which he betrayed West Point to the British.

Humphrey Quits Cabinet Post

Anderson Selected New Treasury Boss
WASHINGTON (AP)—George M. Humphrey today resigned as secretary of the Treasury. Robert B. Anderson former deputy secretary of defense was picked to succeed him.
Humphrey's resignation was announced by the White House through release of a letter from the secretary of the Treasury to President Eisenhower asking to be relieved "no later than the close of the current congressional session."
At the same time Eisenhower formally sent to the Senate a nomination of Anderson to the government's top fiscal post.
Anderson a Texas Democrat has served as secretary of the Navy in the Eisenhower administration as well as deputy secretary of defense.
Eisenhower left the effective date of Humphrey's departure up in the air.
In a letter accepting the resignation the President told Humphrey "there are a number of critical problems to be considered during this session" of Congress and added:
"UNTIL THE BULK of these have been satisfactorily resolved I deeply believe that your experience and the confidence that you enjoy everywhere in government will be great assets in reaching the best answers."
"Consequently the date you turn over your duties to your successor will, within the limits indicated be dictated somewhat by circumstances."

Ohio Road Deaths Showing Decline

COLUMBUS (AP)—Traffic fatalities fell 8 per cent for the first three months of this year compared to the same period a year ago the Department of Highway Safety says.
Injuries were down 4 per cent and accidents 5 per cent continuing a decline that began last July when a 20 per cent decrease in fatalities was recorded.
Gordon Jeffery highway safety director said this year's 4.8 deaths per 100 million car miles in Ohio is 16 per cent below the national average.
The three-month period from January through March saw 408 persons killed and 16,683 injured in 37,980 traffic accidents in Ohio.

Judge's Entry Cites 'Misconduct' School Fight Angles Creep Into Routine Civil Action

A new trial of a suit brought by Minnie Tipton against Max Morrow, administrator of the estate of Riley Allen, for $2,847.56 plus interest, was granted by Judge John P. Case in Common Pleas Court Tuesday, but with the provision that it "should be held only in the event of a reversal of a judgment (by Judge Case) for the defendant notwithstanding the verdict (of the jury) which was heretofore made and entered by this court in this cause on May 7, 1957."
Judge Case had in effect, cancelled a jury's decree for the plaintiff in a routine civil action which now reflects Fayette County's malodorous school fight.
Judge Case's decision was given in the entry filed with the clerk of courts about 4:30 p. m. Tuesday.
It was based only on the testimony given by witnesses at a hearing Monday on Morrow's motion for a new trial. The hearing, which started at mid-afternoon, continued until 9 o'clock that night.
IN HIS ENTRY Judge Case found that the failure of E. J. Cunningham, member of the jury which granted the verdict for the plaintiff, to disclose that he had been a member of the Rural Parents Assn. and that the plaintiff's attorney, F. Scott Zimmerman, had acted in a legal capacity for the RPA, as well as other facts and circumstances showing the interest and activities of the juror and the attorney concerning the Fayette County school controversy, constituted misconduct which was grounds for granting a new trial.
THE ENTRY says:
"The Court, coming now to consider defendant's motion for a new trial, and, limiting its consideration thereof solely to the first and second grounds enumerated and set forth in said motion, do find that, under all of the facts and circumstances surrounding the conduct of plaintiff's counsel during closing argument before the jury within the hearing of the jury, as well as at the bench while within the sight but out of the hearing of the jury, was such as to be unduly prejudicial to said defendant; and that, by reason thereof, defendant's motion for new trial upon the ground of misconduct of the prevailing party is well made and should be granted; but that such new trial should be had only in the event of a reversal of a judgment for defendant notwithstanding the verdict which was heretofore entered by the court in this cause on May 7, 1957;
"And the court, coming to consider the second ground of said motion for new trial based upon

Memorial Day Rites Booked Across Nation

Millions To Observe Holiday with Trips; Traffic To Kill Many
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
As they have for four score and nine years, Americans Thursday will summon reverence and remembrance for the dead of the nation's wars.
Memorial Day was established May 30, 1868, by officers of the Grand Army of the Republic. The savage Civil War that racked the young nation for four years was fresh in their minds. Now the day has come to mean a time to pause and remember those who gave their lives in all our wars, from the Revolution to Korea.
Veterans groups, Boy Scout and others will march in parades. They will hear rifle-crack salutes fired over graves, some almost fresh, some very old. They will hear Taps blown on a bugle.
Many will feel fresh grief as they lay wreaths and flowers on graves of soldiers they had loved.
For millions of others the holiday will signal a great exodus on highways and trains, heading for a picnic or a visit. The weather forecast is fair and mild for most of the nation. Before the four-day weekend is over many new deaths will be added to the toll of war, but they will be auto traffic deaths. The National Safety Council predicts 120 Americans will die on the highways Thursday.
At the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery, ceremonies will be held in the amphitheater. Secretary of the Air Force Donald Quarles will speak. A presidential wreath will be laid at the tomb.
Among the other observances will be those at Antietam National Battlefield Site, Maryland; Battle-ground National Cemetery, Washington, D. C.; Gettysburg National Cemetery; Home of Franklin D. Roosevelt National Historic Site, Hyde Park, N. Y.; and Independence National Historical Park, Pennsylvania.
There is a place called the Cathedral of the Pines at Rindge, N. H., and many will gather there on the hilltop before the "Altar of the Nation."
This altar, so recognized by Congress as a memorial to America's war dead, is built of stones from over the country.
Gen. Joshua W. Sill, Civil War hero, will be honored at Memorial Day services at his resting place, in Chillicothe, Ohio here and at Ft. Sill, Okla.
Gen. Sill was killed by a sniper's bullet Dec. 31, 1862, at the battle of Stones River, Murfreesboro, Tenn. He was 31.
Unveiling a bronze plaque on Gen. Sill's grave at the Chillicothe cemetery will be Brig. Gen. Ralph R. Mace, deputy commanding general of Ft. Chaffee, Ark., and a native of Chillicothe, and Mrs. Grace Douglas Johnson, grand niece of Gen. Sill.
The Mount Vernon Fife and Drum Corps will also participate. The American Legion will decorate the grave of a Confederate veteran who lies beside Sill.
At Ft. Sill, Okla., which was named by Gen. Philip Sheridan in honor of his West Point classmate, a granite memorial to Sill will be unveiled on the fort's old parade ground.
Slayer of Father Is Given Sentence
COSHOCTON (AP)—Common Pleas Court Judge Lloyd S. Leech Tuesday sentenced Robert E. Ishmael of Coshocton to a 1-20 year term at the Mansfield Reformatory for first degree manslaughter.
Ishmael 28 was convicted last week in the fatal shooting of his father, John 46 at Roscoe about one mile west of here.
The shooting followed a drinking party at a friend's home.
Planning More Travel
LOUISVILLE Ky. (AP)—Edward Walsh spent four years and traveled 40,000 miles before receiving his diploma.
The 40,000 miles is the distance he traveled during his high school career to and from his home 24 miles from Trinity High School.
What's he going to do now? Why enroll at the University of Louisville—about 10 miles farther from home of course.

Three Injured In Auto Crash

Two Cars Collide
At Lewis-Temple St.

Three people were injured, none seriously, in a two-car collision at the corner of Lewis and Temple Sts. about 6:30 p. m. Tuesday.

In good condition at Memorial Hospital, where she was undergoing treatment Wednesday for a broken right shoulder, was Mrs. Delbert Looker, 47, of Bloomingburg. She was to be released Wednesday afternoon, hospital authorities said.

Treated in the emergency room for multiple bruises and contusions were Charles McKinley Foster, 23, and Mrs. Foster, 17, of 817 Broadway. Both were released after treatment.

Police said that Foster's car, traveling east on Temple St. apparently ran through a stop sign and collided with the Looker auto, going south on Lewis St.

The Foster car was turned around by the impact and came to rest headed back west, in the middle of the intersection. Foster was thrown into the street.

Mrs. Looker's car traveled about 30 feet further south before coming to rest on Lewis St.

The front end of the Foster car was demolished. The right side of and the windshield was smashed. Foster was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

He is no relation to Police Capt. Charles Foster.

U. S. Eyes Cut In Personnel On Formosa

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Department officials expressed hope today that a sharp cut in the 10,000 Americans stationed on Formosa would help improve relations with the Chinese population.

At the same time there were indications that the United States is re-examining its relations with Formosa in an effort to determine the island's reliability as a bastion of American defenses in the Far East.

This basic issue of security is the real source of concern over last Friday's riotous assault on the U. S. Embassy at Taipei. Authorities say privately they want to know whether the outbreak was simply an incidental explosion of violence or the result of deep anti-American hostility.

The probability of an early reduction in the number of Americans officially assigned to Formosa was announced Tuesday by State Department spokesman Lincoln White. He said the matter is being discussed with the Defense Department and other government agencies concerned.

One theory voiced here after the riots was that the contrast between the living standards of Americans in the island and the conditions of the Chinese population had bred resentment.

alleged misconduct of the jury, and after due consideration of all of the testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing had thereon, at which witnesses were called and testified on direct and cross-examination, and giving due consideration to their credibility, their opportunity to know and their ability to recall and relate the facts and circumstances to which they testified; and whether their respective testimony reasonably consistent throughout, and whether their respective testimony was corroborated or contradicted by the testimony of other witnesses, do find that the failure of E. J. Cunningham, a prospective juror, to disclose on voir dire examination that he had been a member of the Rural Parent's Assn. and that plaintiff's attorney had acted in a legal capacity for said association at a meeting of the Fayette County School Board at which both said prospective juror and said attorney were present, together with other facts and circumstances showing the interest and activities of said juror and said attorney concerning a certain public school controversy within Fayette County, was misconduct which in the interest of a fair trial is ground for granting a new trial, and that such disclosure would have presented a ground for preemptory challenge which it is inferable that defendant's counsel would have used if it had been disclosed; and therefore the Court finds that defendant's motion for new trial upon the second ground stated therein should be granted and sustained; but that such new trial should be had only in the event of a reversal of a judgment for defendant notwithstanding the verdict which was heretofore entered by the court in this cause on May 7, 1957.

"It is therefore ordered, adjudged and decreed that, upon the findings herein above stated and set forth, defendant's motion for new trial be, and hereby the same is, granted and sustained as to each of the first two grounds stated and set forth therein; but that such new trial should be had only in the event of a reversal of a judgment for defendant notwithstanding the verdict which was heretofore made and entered by this Court in this cause on May 7, 1957.

"To all of which findings, judgment and order the plaintiff excepts and her exceptions are hereby noted of record."

FIVE GROUNDS were cited in the motion for a new trial: (1) Misconduct of the prevailing party (in this instance her attorney Zimmerman); (2) misconduct of the jury; (3) final order and decree was not sustained by sufficient evidence and was contrary to law; (4) errors of law occurring at the trial and excepted to by the defendant (Morrow) and (5) other errors manifest upon the face of the trial and procedure.

The hearing was limited to consideration of the first and second grounds, Judge Case noted in his entry.

Mrs. Tipton sued Morrow, as administrator of Allen's estate, for $2,847.56, plus interest, which she claimed was due her for housekeeping services, nursing and groceries during the time she and her two children lived with Allen at his home at West Lancaster.

On April 4, the jury brought in a verdict awarding Mrs. Tipton judgment for $3,161.64.

Then on May 7, Judge Case set aside the verdict of the jury and vacated the judgment awarded to Mrs. Tipton and rendered a decision in favor of Morrow.

WHAT ON the surface appeared to be a routine suit for judgment, unexpectedly became involved with the long and complex school controversy between Miami Trace and Rural Parents Assn. parties.

Morrow's motion was supported by affidavits by Edwin Buck and Eugene Avey that pointed out the lines along which the arguments for the new trial would be made.

These affidavits related to the alleged activities of Zimmerman, a attorney for Mrs. Tipton and Cunningham, a member of the jury that rendered the verdict for her at the trial.

The affidavits by Buck and Avey, which were filed with the motion, said that at the time of trial of Mrs. Tipton's suit for judgment, Zimmerman and Cunningham had had associations in relation to the school controversy of such a nature that made it "practically impossible for them not to have conferred intimately."

IT ALSO was stated in the affidavits that Cunningham, on examination by the court and attorney for Morrow, had said he was "just a casual acquaintance" of Zimmerman and that at the time of the trial Morrow was not aware of the extent of the acquaintance.

The affidavits also alleged misconduct by Zimmerman at the trial which tended to prejudice the jury by making improper remarks and comments in the arguments of counsel and discussed in the presence of the jury, over objections of the defendant and admonitions by the court.

Judge Case said, at the time he filed his entry and decision for the new trial late Tuesday, that he had not considered the affidavits and had based his decision only on the testimony of witnesses at the hearing.

WITNESSES at the hearing on the new trial motion were Cunningham, who was on the stand about two hours; Zimmerman; W. J. Hilty, superintendent of the county schools; Mrs. Hilty; Joseph Campbell, a rural member of the Citizens Committee, and J. Herbert Perrill, a member of the Miami Trace school board.

After the verdict of the jury was set aside by Judge Case, Zimmerman filed notice that he will appeal the case to the Court of Appeals.

Budget-Cutters Win Test Vote

GOP Leaders Seeking
To Hike Defense Fund

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defeated in their first test by the "economy bloc" House Republican leaders renewed today their drive to provide more money for defense.

They pinned their fading hopes on a rollcall vote later today.

The leaders' goal is to restore about $223 million of the $2½ billion tentatively cut from new defense funds by the House Appropriations Committee.

But they drew little solace from a test vote Tuesday which rejected their first move by a standing count of 145-113. It would have given the Army an extra $80 million for maintenance and operation restoring more than half of the $150 million chopped off by the committee.

Only seven Democrats were seen standing in support of the amendment while about 20 Republicans opposed it.

That vote Republican leaders conceded privately probably set the pattern.

HOUSE SPEAKER Rayburn (D-Tex.) said the pattern has been set. Rayburn is backing the committee's recommendation that the Defense Department get along during the coming fiscal year on $33½ billion instead of the $36.1 billion requested by the President. Eisenhower wants $12 billion restored.

About $1.3 billion of the cuts are of the bookkeeping variety involving transfers and postponements. Democrats contend the department can absorb the remainder of the cuts by belt-tightening and curtailment of "waste and extravagance."

But Republicans led by Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts contend the cuts would force a reduction of 32,500 in military personnel as well as curtailment of vital procurement programs.

Highway Traffic Can Drive You Nuts

LOS ANGELES (AP)—If you're driving down the highway some day and you suddenly get an idea that you're Napoleon Bonaparte you'll just be confirming a theory of Dr. Norbert Rieger.

It's really possible Dr. Rieger believes for a person to come unglued upstairs while trying to pilot the family car through modern highway traffic.

"The strain of driving on Los Angeles freeways surrounded by hurtling cars and trucks is even greater than that faced by pioneer families who crossed the country in covered wagons and fought off Indians," said Rieger, staff member at the state mental hospital at Camarillo.

B-G Trustees OK Penalties For Rioters

BOWLING GREEN (AP)—University President Ralph W. McDonald and administrative officials took the right steps in dealing with a May 24 student riot at Bowling Green State University the board of trustees has decided.

What's more the trustees said Tuesday university authorities are "authorized and directed to impose proper punishment on any one connected with the university found guilty of violating the rules and regulations." They urged that "the guilty ones" be "removed from the rolls of the university."

The riot early Friday morning was blamed on a feud between fraternities and the university administration over liquor regulations. Three Injured In Auto Crash

Two Cars Collide
At Lewis-Temple St.

Three people were injured, none seriously, in a two-car collision at the corner of Lewis and Temple Sts. about 6:30 p. m. Tuesday.

In good condition at Memorial Hospital, where she was undergoing treatment Wednesday for a broken right shoulder, was Mrs. Delbert Looker, 47, of Bloomingburg. She was to be released Wednesday afternoon, hospital authorities said.

Treated in the emergency room for multiple bruises and contusions were Charles McKinley, 19, of 127, and Mrs. Foster, 17, of 817 Broadway. Both were released after treatment.

Police said that Foster's car, traveling east on Temple St. apparently ran through a stop sign and collided with the Looker auto, going south on Lewis St.

The Foster car was turned around by the impact and came to rest headed back west, in the middle of the intersection. Foster was thrown into the street.

Mrs. Looker's car traveled about 30 feet further south before coming to rest on Lewis St.

The front end of the Foster car was demolished. The right side of and the windshield was smashed. Foster was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

He is no relation to Police Capt. Charles Foster.

alleged misconduct of the jury, and after due consideration of all of the testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing had thereon, at which witnesses were called and testified on direct and cross-examination, and giving due consideration to their credibility, their opportunity to know and their ability to recall and relate the facts and circumstances to which they testified; and whether their respective testimony reasonably consistent throughout, and whether their respective testimony was corroborated or contradicted by the testimony of other witnesses, do find that the failure of E. J. Cunningham, a prospective juror, to disclose on voir dire examination that he had been a member of the Rural Parent's Assn. and that plaintiff's attorney had acted in a legal capacity for said association at a meeting of the Fayette County School Board at which both said prospective juror and said attorney were present, together with other facts and circumstances showing the interest and activities of said juror and said attorney concerning a certain public school controversy within Fayette County, was misconduct which in the interest of a fair trial is ground for granting a new trial, and that such disclosure would have presented a ground for preemptory challenge which it is inferable that defendant's counsel would have used if it had been disclosed; and therefore the Court finds that defendant's motion for new trial upon the second ground stated therein should be granted and sustained; but that such new trial should be had only in the event of a reversal of a judgment for defendant notwithstanding the verdict which was heretofore entered by the court in this cause on May 7, 1957.

"It is therefore ordered, adjudged and decreed that, upon the findings herein above stated and set forth, defendant's motion for new trial be, and hereby the same is, granted and sustained as to each of the first two grounds stated and set forth therein; but that such new trial should be had only in the event of a reversal of a judgment for defendant notwithstanding the verdict which was heretofore entered by the court in this cause on May 7, 1957.

"To all of which findings, judgment and order the plaintiff excepts and her exceptions are hereby noted of record."

FIVE GROUNDS were cited in the motion for a new trial: (1) Misconduct of the prevailing party (in this instance her attorney Zimmerman); (2) misconduct of the jury; (3) final order and decree was not sustained by sufficient evidence and was contrary to law; (4) errors of law occurring at the trial and excepted to by the defendant (Morrow); and (5) other errors manifest upon the face of the trial and procedure.

The hearing was limited to consideration of the first and second grounds, Judge Case noted in his entry.

Mrs. Tipton sued Morrow, as administrator of Allen's estate, for $2,847.56, plus interest, which she claimed was due her for housekeeping services, nursing and groceries during the time she and her two children lived with Allen at his home at West Lancaster.

On April 4, the jury brought in a verdict awarding Mrs. Tipton judgment for $3,161.64.

Then on May 7, Judge Case set aside the verdict of the jury and vacated the judgment awarded to Mrs. Tipton and rendered a decision in favor of Morrow.

WHAT ON the surface appeared to be a routine suit for judgment, unexpectedly became involved with the long and complex school controversy between Miami Trace and Rural Parents Assn. participants.

Morrow's motion was supported by affidavits by Edwin Buck and Eugene Avey that pointed out the lines along which the arguments for the new trial would be made. These affidavits related to the alleged activities of Zimmerman, attorney for Mrs. Tipton and Cunningham, a member of the jury that rendered the verdict for her at the trial.

The affidavits by Buck and Avey, which were filed with the motion, said that at the time of trial of Mrs. Tipton's suit for judgment, Zimmerman and Cunningham had had associations in relation to the school controversy of such a nature that made it "practically impossible for them not to have conferred intimately."

IT ALSO was stated in the affidavits that Cunningham, on examination by the court and attorney for Morrow, had said he was "just a casual acquaintance" of Zimmerman and that at the time of the trial Morrow was not aware of the extent of the acquaintance.

The affidavits also alleged misconduct by Zimmerman at the trial which tended to prejudice the jury by making improper remarks and comments in the arguments of counsel and discussed in the presence of the jury, over objections of the defendant and admonitions by the court.

Judge Case said, at the time he filed his entry and decision for the new trial late Tuesday, that he had not considered the affidavits and had based his decision only on the testimony of witnesses at the hearing.

Budget-Cutters Win Test Vote

GOP Leaders Seeking
To Hike Defense Fund

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defeated in their first test by the "economy bloc" House Republican leaders renewed today their drive to provide more money for defense.

They pinned their fading hopes on a rollcall vote later today.

The leaders' goal is to restore about $233 million of the $2½ billion tentatively cut from new defense funds by the House Appropriations Committee.

But they drew little solace from a test vote Tuesday which rejected their first move by a standing count of 145-113. It would have given the Army an extra $80 million for maintenance and operation restoring more than half of the $150 million chipped off by the committee.

Only seven Democrats were seen standing in support of the amendment while about 20 Republicans opposed it.

That vote Republican leaders conceded privately probably set the pattern.

HOUSE SPEAKER Rayburn (D-Tex) said the pattern has been set. Rayburn is backing the committee's recommendation that the Defense Department get along during the coming fiscal year on $33½ billion instead of the $36.1 billion requested by the President. Eisenhower wants $1.2 billion restored.

About $1.3 billion of the cuts are of the bookkeeping variety involving transfers and postponements. Democrats contend the department can absorb the remainder of the cuts by belt-tightening and curtailment of "waste and extravagance."

But Republicans led by Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts contend the cuts would force a reduction of 32,500 in military personnel as well as curtailment of vital procurement programs.

The testimony of witnesses at the hearing.

WITNESSES at the hearing on the new trial motion were Cunningham, who was on the stand about two hours; Zimmerman; W. J. Hilty, superintendent of the county schools; Mrs. Hilty; Joseph Campbell, a rural member of the Citizens Committee, and J. Herbert Perrill, a member of the Miami Trace school board.

After the verdict of the jury was set aside by Judge Case, Zimmerman filed notice that he will appeal the case to the Court of Appeals.

Army to Adopt Metric System

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army is going to scrap the traditional linear measurement for artillery and rifle fire distance and height. It will adopt the European metric system in place of the familiar feet yards and miles.

A new regulation, signed by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor Army chief of staff, says that the reasons for the change include:

1. To "facilitate standardization" within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.
2. To "permit better and more extensive use of allied and captured enemy materiel."

The regulation says a start on the change-over is to be made "with the least practicable delay."

Ohio Corn Planting Is Behind Schedule

COLUMBUS (AP)—Corn and soybean plantings hampered by wet weather are lagging behind the 1956 pace an Ohio agricultural report says.

The report prepared by the Ohio Agricultural Extension Service and the U. S. Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the U. S. Weather Bureau shows corn planting is only 40 percent complete while soybeans are only 16 percent complete.

BOWLING GREEN (AP)—University President Ralph W. McDonald and administrative officials took the right steps in dealing with a May 24 student riot at Bowling Green State University the board of trustees has decided.

What's more the trustees said Tuesday university authorities are "authorized and directed to impose proper punishment on any one connected with the university found guilty of violating the rules and regulations." They urged that "the guilty ones" be "removed from the rolls of the university."

The riot early Friday morning was blamed on a feud between fraternities and the university administration over liquor regulations. An estimated 1500 students burned straw threatened to invade the Delta Gamma sorority house turned fire hoses on firemen, marched on the county jail, burned Dr. McDonald in effigy.

Even Bankers Out Recruiting Graduates Now

Their'e Paying Good Wages, too, Shelving Old 'Prestige' Theory

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Your son and daughter trying to make up their minds what to be when they get out of school? They can get all kinds of advice—even from your banker.

To meet a growing need for more personnel banks today are trying all therecutting angles—even to paying the going rate for clerical workers rather than holding to the old idea that "prestige" should make up for about half of it.

Time was when parents assured their children that if they went to work for a bank they would be "looked up to" in the community, even if for a long time afterward their takehome pay might be less than if they had taken jobs with less social standing. Waiting for the really good banking jobs to become vacant could be mighty frustrating at best.

Now the banks are trying to bury that old reputation. They are preaching to the new crop of college and high school graduates that they can really go places in the banking business.

It may have been competition for clerical workers that first led banks to raise starting pay scales. But it is the growth of the banking system's operations that has led to more top level jobs.

The American Bankers Assn. says that each year the nation's 15,000 banks have about 1,600 bank presidencies, and 4,000 other officers positions to fill. Since 1940 the banks employ rolls have swelled by more than 250,000.

The association says this is because in the last 17 years the number of commercial banking accounts has doubled, the volume of bank loans and investments has tripled, and banking services have been greatly expanded.

To help the ambitious young man or woman to move up the ladder, the American Institute of Banking offers courses to prepare employees for jobs ahead. These re-open to all bank employees, men or women, high school or college graduates.

Bank officers have another program to help them keep climbing. The American Bankers Assn. has a graduate school of banking, offering advanced studies. State bankers associations also sponsor special courses at some universities and individual banks provide on the job training for new employees and executive development courses for the ambitious.

Part of the need for these programs is that banking jobs are becoming both specialized and diversified. The path no longer leads exclusively from teller to cashier to vice president in charge of wealthy widow clients.

There are many by paths now. They range from market research to installment financing, from management of securities to business development from advertising and public relations to corporation finance.

'We Must Keep Faith', Thacker Tells Rotary

"We have a debt to pay—we must keep faith with the hero dead and the disabled living on this Memorial Day", Fred W. Thacker, Ohio commander of the American Legion, told the Washington C. H. Rotary Club Tuesday noon.

Thacker, a resident of Marion and an Air Force major in World War II, told the service organization at its Country Club luncheon meeting that "we must rededicate ourselves to the ideals of those who fell—rededicate ourselves to keeping America a free nation of free people."

"Patriotism is never old-fashioned", he said, "and we must never turn our backs on the brave servants of the republic."

THACKER reviewed the custom of paying tribute to the war dead, tracing it back to ancient Greece. He pointed out that the women of the Confederacy established the custom in this country of setting aside a day of remembrance and that they decorated the graves of friend and foe alike.

Later, in 1868, Gen. John Logan, commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, issued the first general Memorial Day order. Thacker pointed out that the 17,000 American Legion posts and their auxiliaries have taken over the task of Memorial Day guidance from the now-vanished GAR.

At the same time, Thacker said, patriotic-minded Americans must be vigilant. "We could find ourselves a slave nation if we are not prepared", he cautioned his listeners, urging the importance of a strong reserve.

"A hydrogen bomb could reduce all of Washington C.H. to rubble and create serious damage within a radius of 10 miles of the city", he warned.

THACKER also urged Rotarians to urge and support legislation which would provide the protection of American laws for those servicemen who are assigned overseas. When American personnel is subject to the laws of the countries in which they serve, rather than being subject to the laws of their own country, they become second class citizens, the speaker declared.

Thacker was introduced by Program Chairman Herbert Wilson who also presented Russ White, commander of Paul H. Hughes Post, American Legion, and Rotarian William Stoughton who is Seventh District American Legion commander.

VISITING Rotarians at the meeting were William Treat, of Waterbury, Conn., and Marion Sollars, of DeWitt, Ark.

Other guests were the Rev. Edward Cherryholmes, pastor of the EUB Church at East Linden, a Columbus suburb, with Dewey Sheldler; Harry Thrallkill and Hugh Rea, Washington C. H., with Marilyn Riley; Clarence Waltemath, Cincinnati, with Paul Arthur.

Birthday greetings were sung for Ray Brandenburg, R. S. Rochester and Walter Morrow.

Plans were announced for a Rotary assembly to be held at 6:30 p. m. June 13 at Anderson's Restaurant. Committee chairmen and new members are expected to attend.

Actress Advises Housewives: Make Most of Your Time

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Advice to wives: "The thing to do is figure out how much time you have — and then make the most of that time."

This is how Mary Hosford explains her amazing success in combining a variety of careers, including home making. Right now she is embarking on a whole new career as a movie actress. She's making her film debut as the leading lady in "The Missouri Traveler."

Besides this, she has been a radio actress, cookbook author, TV star, real estate saleswoman and occasional cook for 200 guests. And she's the mother of four small children.

I pinned Mary down on her varied careers between scenes of a Fourth of July celebration in a small Missouri town. She disclosed she is also from Missouri—Kansas City. She entered the University of Iowa at 15 and did radio work in her home town, Chicago and New York.

Nine years ago she married wealthy Frank Hosford, who has insurance, oil and mining interests. But she didn't retire to a life of leisure. They traveled a great deal.

After wintering in Phoenix, Ariz., for a few years, the Hosfords moved there the year-around because of their children, who range from 2 to 8. With time on her hands, Mary embarked on a local television show of the Faye Emerson type.

I asked her what she does with her spare time.

"Oh, I keep active in committees and guilds in Phoenix," she said. "I also play golf, though not as well as I'd like to."

Even Bankers Out Recruiting Graduates Now

Their'e Paying Good
 Wages, too, Shelving
 Old 'Prestige' Theory

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (AP)—Your son and daughter trying to make up their minds what to be when they get out of school? They can get all kinds of advice—even from your banker.

To meet a growing need for more personnel banks today are trying all the recruiting angles—even to paying the going rate for clerical workers rather than holding to the old idea that "prestige" should make up for about half of it.

Time was when parents assured their children that if they went to work for a bank they would be "looked up to" in the community, even if for a long time afterward their takehome pay might be less than if they had taken jobs with less social standing. Waiting for the really good banking jobs to become vacant could be mighty frustrating at best.

Now the banks are trying to bury that old reputation. They are preaching to the new crop of college and high school graduates that they can really go places in the banking business.

It may have been competition for clerical workers that first led banks to raise starting pay scales. But it is the growth of the banking system's operations that has led to more top level jobs.

The American Bankers Assn. says that each year the nation's 15,000 banks have about 1,000 bank presidencies, and 4,000 other officers positions to fill. Since 1940 the banks employ rolls have swelled by more than 250,000.

The association says this is because in the last 17 years the number of commercial banking accounts has doubled, the volume of bank loans and investments has tripled, and banking services have been greatly expanded.

To help the ambitious young man or woman to move up the ladder, the American Institute of Banking offers courses to prepare employees for jobs ahead. These re-open to all bank employees, men or women, high school or college graduates.

Bank officers have another program to help them keep climbing. The American Bankers Assn. has a graduate school of banking, offering advanced studies. State bankers associations also sponsor special courses at some universities and individual banks provide on the job training for new employees and executive development courses for the ambitious.

Part of the need for these programs is that banking jobs are becoming both specialized and diversified. The path no longer leads exclusively from teller to cashier to vice president in charge of wealthy widow clients.

There are many by paths nowadays. They range from market research to installment financing, from management of securities to business development from advertising and public relations to corporation finance.

Dr. Geer Seeking Lifting of Penalty

LANCASTER (AP)—Dr. Joseph A. Geer, former Fairfield County coroner, has asked the Lancaster-Fairfield Hospital Board to reconsider its action dismissing him from the hospital staff. He asked that he be restored to the active medical staff.

Dr. Geer was placed on two years probation recently when he pleaded guilty to charges of falsifying narcotics prescriptions. His dismissal from the hospital staff followed.

'We Must Keep Faith', Thacker Tells Rotary

"We have a debt to pay—we must keep faith with the hero dead and the disabled living on this Memorial Day," Fred W. Thacker, Ohio commander of the American Legion, told the Washington C. H. Rotary Club Tuesday noon.

Thacker, a resident of Marion and an Air Force major in World War II, told the service organization at its Country Club luncheon meeting that "we must rededicate ourselves to the ideals of those who fell—rededicate ourselves to keeping America a free nation of free people."

"Patriotism is never old-fashioned," he said, "and we must never turn our backs on the brave servants of the republic."

THACKER reviewed the custom of paying tribute to the war dead, tracing it back to ancient Greece. He pointed out that the women of the Confederacy established the custom in this country of setting aside a day of remembrance and that they decorated the graves of friend and foe alike.

Later, in 1868, Gen. John Logan, commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, issued the first general Memorial Day order. Thacker pointed out that the 17,000 American Legion posts and their auxiliaries have taken over the task of Memorial Day guidance from the now-vanished GAR.

At the same time, Thacker said, patriotic-minded Americans must be vigilant. "We could find ourselves a slave nation if we are not prepared," he cautioned his listeners, urging the importance of a strong reserve.

"A hydrogen bomb could reduce all of Washington C.H. to rubble and created serious damage within a radius of 10 miles of the city," he warned.

THACKER also urged Rotarians to urge and support legislation which would provide the protection of American laws for those servicemen who are assigned overseas. When American personnel

Actress Advises Housewives: Make Most of Your Time

By BOB THOMAS
 HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Advice to wives: "The thing to do is figure out how much time you have — and then make the most of that time."

This is how Mary Hosford explains her amazing success in combining a variety of careers, including home making. Right now she is embarking on a whole new career as a movie actress. She's making her film debut as the leading lady in "The Missouri Traveler."

Besides this, she has been a radio actress, cookbook author, TV star, real estate saleswoman and occasional cook for 200 guests. And she's the mother of four small children.

I pinned Mary down on her varied careers between scenes of a Fourth of July celebration in a small Missouri town. She disclosed she is also from Missouri — Kansas City. She entered the University of Iowa at 15 and did radio work in her home town, Chicago and New York.

Nine years ago she married wealthy Frank Hosford, who has insurance, oil and mining interests. But she didn't retire to a life of leisure. They traveled a great deal.

After wintering in Phoenix, Ariz., for a few years, the Hosfords moved there the year-around because of their children, who range from 2 to 8. With time on her hands, Mary embarked on a local television show of the Faye Emerson type.

I asked her what she does with her spare time.

"Oh, I keep active in committees and guilds in Phoenix," she said. "I also play golf, though not as well as I'd like to."

Memorial Day And Its Hope For Tomorrow

With another Memorial Day at hand, there are many among us who wonder if its real significance is impressed upon a majority of our people.

Does it really mean all that its dedication intended? Does it really make the deep impression on individuals, including our school children that it should?

Will Thursday this week be held as a day of honor for those men who died in battle while our nation pauses for a few hours in a solemn tribute and also a look toward betterment for the future?

To too many, we fear, it will be just another holiday, a time for recreation and fun; to others it will be treated as an occasion for the reverence it deserves.

The observance of Memorial Day turns back the thoughts of thousands to recollections and legends of battle. Little flags and wreaths of flowers recall lives lost and hardships of war in days gone by. To others, concerned with today's international tenseness, thoughts will turn ahead to what might happen again and to the added horrors of what a warlike outburst could mean in this atomic age.

There is a big task ahead for present and future generations. Much will depend upon how earnestly nations strive to make sure that the dead of our past wars shall not have died in vain.

In all this there can be hope if all of us can only set our sights toward what we know to be decent and honorable. It is not beyond possibility of realization that an end can come to much of the useless quarrelling, bickering, accusations, not only among nations, but also in our own country where so many group clashes result from individual and group pursuit of selfish goals and advantages.

May the Memorial Day tributes this year be in part given over to hope that the months ahead will bring clarity to our vision, common sense to our thinking and progress to our plans and actions for bettering conditions for all the people. No finer memorial could be achieved in memory of our honored dead.

Diet and Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

The United States has made great steps in eradicating many diseases. Many other countries, however, have not been so fortunate.

Health Problem

With modern air travel making it relatively simple to fly from the U. S. to virtually any foreign nation in a matter of hours, this could become quite a serious health problem.

But the U. S. Public Health Service and the World Health Organization have established regulations designed to prevent the spread of infectious disease from one nation to another.

Certificate Required

If you do go abroad, you will need an International Certificate of Vaccination to do so.

In order to enter or re-enter the United States, you will need valid certificates attesting to the fact that you have been vaccinated against cholera, smallpox and yellow fever, depending on which country you have visited.

Quarantine Period

If you cannot prove you have had the required vaccinations, you may be subject to vaccination or surveillance up to 14 days. These foreign quarantine regulations are based on the incubation period of the various diseases.

Better check with your local health or federal government officials to determine just what disease protection you'll need when going abroad.

Then see your doctor or health department for the proper vaccinations. And be sure to obtain the needed official forms certifying your immunization.

Incidentally, better not plan on bringing back any pets. The United States and many other nations have strong regulations against the importation of birds, dogs, cats and monkeys which might have psittacosis.

This is a disease, usually found in parrots, parakeets and lovebirds, which can be transmitted to humans. A virus disease, it responds well to treatment with large doses of penicillin.

A-War Practice, an Experiment

FORT RILEY, Kan. (AP)—Here

on vast rolling plains where it trained some of its greatest military heroes, the U. S. Army is engaging in mock battles of a new kind of war—atomic war.

The experiments going on here would amaze some of those past cavalry heroes—Jeb Stuart, George Custer, George Patton, Jonathan Wainwright.

They are also a bit confusing to some of the present heroes here—inframymen, tankmen and artillerymen trying to puzzle out the role of ground forces on an atomic battlefield.

As one officer put it: "No one ever really fought on an atomic battlefield. We have to feel our way."

But enthusiasm and morale are high among the soldiers of the U. S. 1st Infantry Division, "The Big Red One," which was picked to lead the Army's new pen'omic organization.

The division, now led by Maj. Gen. David H. Buchanan of Marion, Va., an officer with a fine combat and staff record, still has on its rolls 26 veterans from World War II during which it was in action 443 days and took more than 100,000 prisoners.

The division has been streamlined down from a peak of 17,500 men to about 13,000. Its three regiments, under the new pen'omic organization, have been succeeded by five heavily supported battle groups.

Some of the oldtimers wept openly a few months ago, during a colorful ceremony at which the colors of the division's three famous old regiments—the 16th, 18th and 26th—were struck, perhaps forever.

"But under the new organization we have gained a lot in terms of firepower and great mobility," said Col. William O. Cunningham III, who once commanded the 18th regiment and is now division chief of staff.

Recently a public demonstration of the new tactics was put on before a group of impressed Kansas editors by troops commanded by Col. Howard B. St. Clair of Beckley, W. Va. They were flown to the scene in "choppers" (helicopters), which seem to have taken over many of the jeep's roles in the new Army.

A sudden cloud suddenly moshroomed skyward from a small hill, symbolizing an atomic explosion launched against the entrenched enemy. After a heavy bombardment by artillery and mortar shells, the scattered tanks and doughboys began to converge on the objective.

Flickers of little red flame flared in the distance; under the immemorial sun sweating tiny figures of men moved forward in the immemorial way of infantry; little dots of purpose on the immense uncaring earth.

In half an hour a signal flare streaked a wavering signal of colored smoke up from the green and brown hill—the most welcome news in war: "objective taken!"

Will the new pen'omic organization work so well if there should come a real war again? No one can tell. Today everything is experimental.

But Capt. Bob Rollier of Lake Placid, N. Y., one of the most decorated soldiers of the last war, said soberly:

"We're training under both old and new conditions—attacks in which we use atomic shells and attacks in which we don't."

Thoughts on Getting a Checkup

It has become increasingly customary for those who can afford it to get what they call a check-up.

This amounts to taking three or four days off, going into a hospital, getting stuck with needles all over the place while the doctors labor valiantly to discover why you are not dead.

For this you pay money, although some manage to put it on their expense accounts like a meal at "21." It is a good thing to do, I am told and prolongs your life until you retire at 65 when you lose your expense account.

This is the saddest thing about retiring. There is a new gimmick which is very helpful to those over 65. It is to be appointed a consultant.

That is a generic term for anybody who is not needed but is paid nevertheless. The consultant often lasts till he dies.

Some companies send their executives to the Mayo Clinic. Others go to the Lahey Clinic in Boston which is where they seem to know most about ulcers; when a businessman develops an ulcer it is proof that he has thought too hard in the company's interest, has earned his pay and now has an ulcer to show for it.

Such men are highly honored in the business world, although back in the days of Andrew Carnegie and Charles Schwab, they were even more honored for making huge profits.

When a man runs a company that makes an enormous profit for the stockholders, they, the stockholders, will not worry about whether he has an ulcer or a polyp.

All they want him to do is to produce the profits and to show them how to beat the income tax.

I once met a man who made this point about taxes: he said that as long as he made considerably more than he paid, he did not object to the income tax; but when he paid more than he earned, he was resentful.

He was a soft and gentle person who believed in government. He will need many check-ups before he retires, because he is likely to be disillusioned often, particularly by budget makers and presidential speech writers who will surely not get ulcers or polyps or other troubles which come with maturity.

Well, I done get me a checkup

"ESKIMOS," opines Katharine Scherman in her engrossing E book "Spring on an Arctic Island," "are gay, quick-witted, and courageous. But there is one thing wrong with them: they are soft. Living only in the present, they do not see the dangers the white man brings. They see only his gifts, and adapt them to their own civilization. Gradually they are becoming acclimatized to the white man's world and out of touch with their own. One day, all of a sudden, there will be nothing left of the Eskimo. He is like a mummy which has been preserved for thousands of years. Unwrapped and exposed to air, he will crumble to dust."

How quickly public adulation can turn into contempt! The hero of yesterday is booted today, etc., etc.

Finley Peter Dunn's very knowing Mr. Dooley put it this way: "When ye build yer triumphal arch to yer conquerin' hero, he built it out of brick—so the people will have somethin' convenient to throw at him as he passes through."

Airplane Envisioned As 'Angel of Peace'

DETROIT (AP)—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker says that within the next 50 years "the airplane will truly become the Angel of Peace He intended it to be."

Rickenbacker, chairman of the board of Eastern Airlines, outlined his predictions for the next half century in the air in a speech before the Economic Club here.

"With aviation's development in the hands of men of good will we will have, for the first time in the long history of man, the one instrument which can forever eliminate the barriers of time and distance, of ignorance and misunderstanding which, since time began, have set men apart, from, and against each other," he said.

Only about five per cent of the workers retire voluntarily when they reach the age of 65.

Try and Stop Me

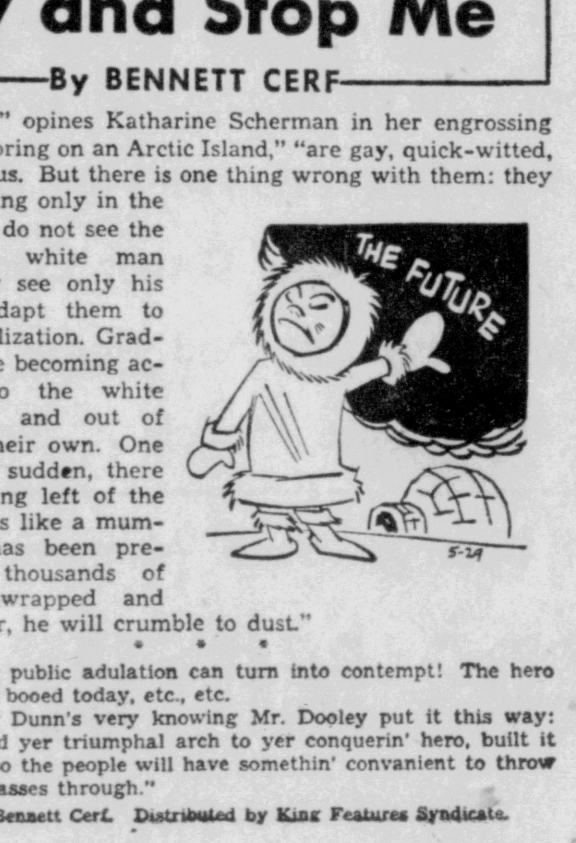

By BENNETT CERF

"ESKIMOS," opines Katharine Scherman in her engrossing book "Spring on an Arctic Island," "are gay, quick-witted, and courageous. But there is one thing wrong with them: they are soft. Living only in the present, they do not see the dangers the white man brings. They see only his gifts, and adapt them to their own civilization. Gradually they are becoming acclimatized to the white man's world and out of touch with their own. One day, all of a sudden, there will be nothing left of the Eskimo. He is like a mummy which has been preserved for thousands of years. Unwrapped and exposed to air, he will crumble to dust."

How quickly popular adulation can turn into contempt! The hero of yesterday is booted today, etc., etc.

Finley Peter Dunn's very knowing Mr. Dooley put it this way: "When ye build yer triumphal arch to yer conquerin' hero, built it out of brick—so the people will have somethin' convenient to throw at him as he passes through."

Diet and Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

The United States has made great steps in eradicating many diseases. Many other countries, however, have not been so fortunate.

Health Problem

With modern air travel making it relatively simple to fly from the U. S. to virtually any foreign nation in a matter of hours, this could become quite a serious health problem.

But the U. S. Public Health Service and the World Health Organization have established regulations designed to prevent the spread of infectious disease from one nation to another.

Certificate Required

If you do go abroad, you will need an International Certificate of Vaccination to do so.

In order to enter or re-enter the United States, you will need valid certificates attesting to the fact that you have been vaccinated against cholera, smallpox and yellow fever, depending on which country you have visited.

Quarantine Period

If you cannot prove you have had the required vaccinations, you may be subject to vaccination or surveillance up to 14 days. These foreign quarantine regulations are based on the incubation period of the various diseases.

Better check with your local health or federal government officials to determine just what disease protection you'll need when going abroad.

Then see your doctor or health department for the proper vaccinations. And be sure to obtain the needed official forms certifying your immunization.

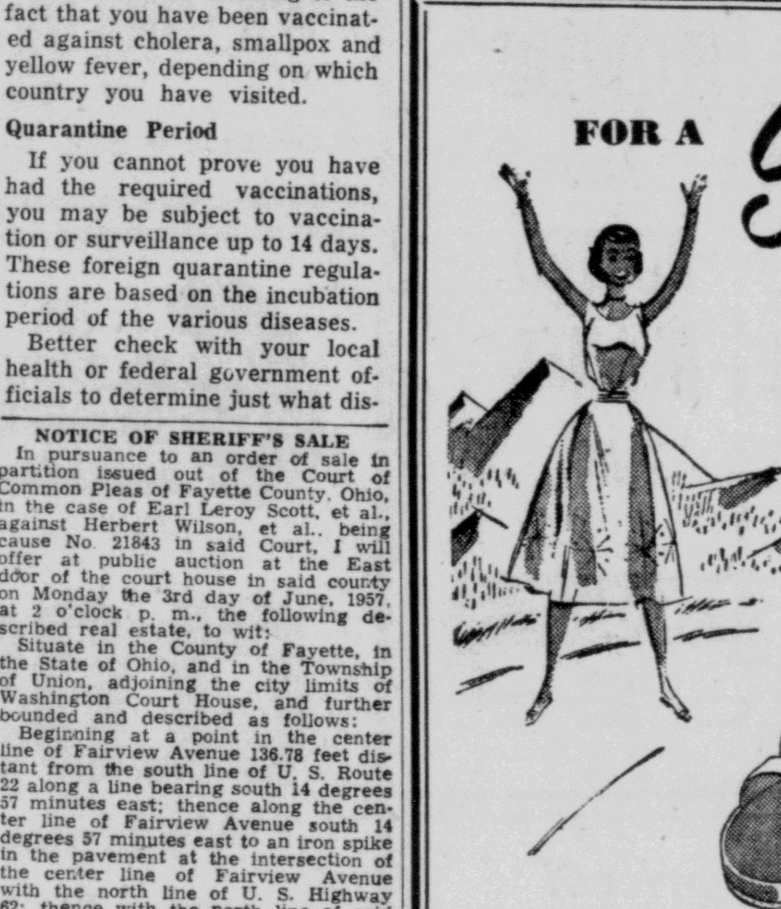

Incidentally, better not plan on bringing back any pets. The United States and many other nations have strong regulations against the importation of birds, dogs, cats and monkeys which might have psittacosis.

This is a disease, usually found in parrots, parakeets and lovebirds, which can be transmitted to humans. A virus disease, it responds well to treatment with large doses of penicillin.

Round about Fayette County

By B. E. KELLEY

As the search for oil continues here, I have obtained still additional information regarding some of the wells drilled in the county in search of water.

For instance when a well was drilled on the Damon E. Merritt farm, White Oak Rd. sometime ago, the drill went down to a depth of 101 feet without striking limestone, which is usually found at a depth of not to exceed 75 feet in that area.

When a good flow of water was struck at 101 feet, in a bed of gravel, twigs and other fragments of wood were brought up by the baller.

To me this would indicate a pre-glacial stream bed in that area, which had worn deep into the bedrock, and was filled with glacial drift piled on top of twigs, logs and other debris.

Within a few miles of the Merritt home one of the big pre-glacial rivers cut through the north-eastern part of Fayette County and flowed northwest, possibly to Lake Erie.

Some other interesting things were found in the Merritt well, which was drilled by Glenn McCoy.

At a depth of 20 feet, the drill penetrated 15 feet of quicksand, and during the next 66 feet the drill encountered black, yellow, grey and red mud until two thin layers of gravel were found.

Gravel was struck at the 101-foot depth, and water arose to within 10 feet of the surface.

I appreciate the information regarding the Merritt well, which was furnished by Mrs. Merritt.

PIGMIES IN AMERICA

Scores of skeletons found buried in Fayette County indicate that the Indians were people who stood from 5 to 6 feet in height, possibly a little taller, or about the height of the average person today.

However a few Indian skeletons have been found in Ohio showing that some of the inhabitants here hundreds of years ago were well over six feet in height.

So far as I know, no skeletons of pigmies have been found in this area or even in Ohio.

However skeletal remains found in Tennessee more than 150 years ago, indicate that a race of pigmies existed in that part of the country, some of them being under three feet in height.

I quote the following from "Chronicles of Border Warfare", published in Clarksburg, Va. in 1831 or 126 years ago, regarding the pigmies:

"In Tennessee many walls of faced stone, and even walled wells have been found in many places, at such depths and under such circumstances as to preclude the idea of their having been made by the whites since the discovery of Columbus.

"In this state, too, have been found burying grounds, in which the skeletons seem all to have been those of pigmies. The graves in which the bodies had been deposited, were seldom three feet in length, yet the teeth in the skulls prove that they were the bodies of persons of mature age.

"Upon the whole there cannot be much doubt, that America was once inhabited by a people, not otherwise allied to the Indians of the present day, than that they were descendants of him, from whom has sprung the whole human family."

SUIT FOR JUDGEMENT

John Laufer, Bloomingburg electrical contractor, has been sued in Common Pleas Court here by the W. - W Electric Co. of Springfield for judgement on a note for $1,646.

PARTITION SUIT FILED

Dorothy McFadden, Mt. Sterling, widow of Clarence McFadden, who died Jan. 30, 1936, has elected to, take under the statute and not under the will and filed a partition suit in Common Pleas Court here for an undivided half interest in certain real estate in the estate of Clarence McFadden in Madison Township, Fayette County. The will was admitted to probate in Madison County.

The ten defendants in the suit are John L. McFadden of Kansas City, Mo.; Charles McFadden, Carl McFadden, William McFadden and Mildred Graves, all of Vinton County; Edgar McFadden and Lorena Graves of Chillicothe; Norma Wilbur of Ilamden, Ohio; Albert Fields of Mt. Sterling and Robert Weber, executor of the estate of Clarence Campbell.

The first pack of playing cards of which any copy is preserved was in use in Venice in 1,125.

Civilian planes manufactured in the United States are being used in 103 countries.

murder case was argued in Ohio Supreme Court in effort to save him from electrocution for killing his half-brother, Charles Halterman, at Blessings Crossing.

The Washington Lumber Co. received badly damaged carload of lumber from Grant, Ala. which had been in Mississippi River flood and enroute 45 days.

The largest class ever graduating from Washington C. H. High School—77—received diplomas.

The population of the city was placed at 8,458 compared with 7,862 in 1920.

A B&O freight and passenger train crashed head-on at Potters Switch, west of this city, when the brakes of freight failed to hold. A fireman was scalded.

Justice of the Peace for 42 years, E. W. Rumer died at Bookwalter at the age of 78 years.

BLACKBERRIES BLOOM

If abundant bloom is any criterion, there will be a bumper blackberry crop this season.

I have never seen blackberry stalks more full of bloom than they are this year, and stalks that are a foot in height show blossoms as well as the large stalks.

There is an old saying that it rains while the blackberries are in bloom, it will spoil the crop.

If that is true, the crop this year will be short, for there has been abundant rain since the berry stalks started blooming.

Speaking of blackberries, that reminds me of the old but true saying that blackberries are green when they are red.

True Story of Pilot, Wife Being Related by Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Yes, that's just how it happened."

These were the words of Jack Ford, who has the unique experience of watching his life pass before his eyes. He is the technical adviser on the film, "The Lady Takes a Flyer," which is based on his own experiences.

Jeff Chandler and Lana Turner play a married couple who operate a plane delivery service, flying aircraft to all parts of the world. The conflict arises when she has a baby and decides she wants to settle down as a housewife. The picture ends with the issue left up to the audience.

With Jack Ford and his wife, the dispute ended in a divorce.

"We never had a fight," he declared. "We just split up over the one issue. She wanted to be a mother and make a home. I thought she should be a flier. We couldn't resolve it, so she got a divorce two years ago."

Jack is a dark-haired, handsome pipe smoker who looks much younger than his 39 years. He grew up in Los Angeles (where his father was superintendent of schools) with a passion for flying. He started flying in 1936, flew in the service during the war.

With his wife, who had flown transatlantic deliveries during the war, he founded an aircraft delivery service. Their marriage went smoothly for a few years, though they were often at opposite ends of the world.

Then the baby came. On some single-seat flights, she took the baby along, strapped to her back papoose-style. But Mrs. Ford paled on the international gadding-about and sought the home life. That's when their marriage conked out.

He admitted that the work is not conducive to married life.

"For instance, we might have to send a crew to Toronto to make a plane delivery to Australia," he cited. "It would be too expensive to ship the crew right home again. So maybe they'd take a plane from Australia to Algiers. Then they might make a delivery to Italy and then to Denmark."

"It might be five months before they get home again. But think of the places they have seen!"

Mrs. William Jones of Columbus, a friend of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mrs. Wilbur Good Jr., of Detroit, Mich., cousin of the groom, was best man.

The bride wore a pale blue silk two piece ensemble and a white orchid with a gold throat was pinned at her shoulder.

The immediate families attended the ceremony after which a wedding dinner was held at the Wardell Party Home, near Circleville.

The new Mrs. Hook is a graduate of Washington High School and is a student at the University of Florida.

Mr. Hook is a graduate of Prescott High School and also is a student at the University of Florida. Both will continue their studies until February, when they will receive their Master Degrees.

After a short honeymoon the couple will make their home at 618 N. E. Tenth St., Gainesville, Fla.

California Widow Receives Ring from Rich Ed Morris

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wealthy widower Ed Morris, in a perfunctory way, has shaken many a bigwig's hand over the years as the capital's official greeter. The soft, tapering hand of a California widow got more personal attention.

Morris, popular socialite civic leader, long a target of local hostesses, designed a diamond ring especially appropriate for the third finger of the left hand of Mrs. Delbert O. Slater of Los Angeles, who has been a Washington visitor on and off over the past year. He slipped it on her finger "during the processional" of a Sunday church service. She flashed it prominently later at a huge cocktail party. The marriage, they said, would take place in the fall.

"He's really very clever and artistic," enthused the bride-to-be as she willingly pulled off her long white kid glove to show me the sparkler.

"You see my second finger and my little finger are unusually thin," she added, spreading out her hand. "He designed the ring with the big diamond surrounded by smaller diamonds to sort of fill in the gaps. How many men would think of such a detail?"

The White House has now added make-believe butterflies to its springtime tea party decor, along with the recorded birdsong it introduced earlier this season.

Guests at a recent affair given by the First Lady could hardly believe they hadn't been transported to the garden, so realistic was the setting. Lilies were twined around the marble pillars in the lobby and bouquets of lilies and roses were everywhere, in the East Room, the Blue Room where Mamie received them, and in the State Dining Room. There was a 10-foot maypole in the East Room, and two small maypoles decorated the tea table.

Man-Made Moon To Wear Top Hat, Trail a Train

Editor's Note: Following is the last in a series of articles telling preparations being made by America for the launching of a man-made moon.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the artificial moons speeding through space will wear a little hat.

And for a time it will be a three-car space train — composed of the satellite ball, a big inflated balloon, and part of the rocket that shoots it up. They'll whiz by one-two-three, in the same orbit.

Such as the plans, coming along well, for the third group of experiments with man-made moons.

Like all others, this moon will be round and shining. But it will contain a magnetometer, a device to measure magnetic currents. Part of the equipment will stick up out of the top like a round pipe, resembling a hat.

When this moon separates from its rocket, a plastic balloon wrapped around the connecting stem will be released, and be inflated by a little cylinder of gas. The balloon — 2 1/2 feet wide — will become another satellite.

This will probe the secret of how much air or gas there is in space.

Space is not quite a vacuum. Scientists believe there's so little air that each molecule of gas travels 12 1/2 miles before bumping into another molecule. (On earth, each air molecule travels only a tiny fraction of an inch before meeting another and popping off in a new direction.)

Speeding 18,000 miles per hour, the little moons will bump into numerous air molecules, and this drag will slow them down. Even so, space is so devoid of drag that even the hat this one is wearing won't make much, if any difference.

The lightweight balloon will be 200 times more sensitive to air drag than the metal ball. The third-stage rocket becomes a satellite too, for a while, but is affected by air drag more than the moon itself, because of its weight. Only for a while will each "car" in this train keep the same orbit. Air drag will change their paths significantly.

Perhaps the balloon will be popped by a meteor like a boy using a pea-shooter.

Each one of the little moons will help answer another significant question — what is the exact shape of the earth, and its mass composition?

The earth is not a perfect sphere. Variations in its pull of gravity due to differences in its mass, will affect the orbits of the satellites. By special computations, such can be learned about the shape of the earth, relative position of land masses, and even the composition of the earth's crust.

Once the orbit of a moon is known, scientists can take sightings on it and more nearly pinpoint the exact location of any spot on earth. Right now, distances between continents, or points at opposite sides of our globe, are in error by a number of feet.

In a main task, the moon with a hat will report new data about the deep mystery of magnetism. Great magnetic currents appear to exist out in space. Are they really there? And what causes variations in the earth's magnetic field? What's the significance? This moon can get answers, will have batteries to radio reports for 50 days.

Projects being considered for later moons could produce vital information concerning weather and climate. One moon could plot the amount and motion of clouds over the earth. Another could measure how much radiation comes to and escapes from the earth. Decisions should be made shortly on just what the fourth and subsequent moons will do.

Twelve special telescopes, manned by professionals and strategically placed around the world, will tune in on the moons and learn what air drag and gravity are doing to it.

With luck, you may glimpse the moon yourself, just after sunset, or just before sunrise. You'll probably need binoculars.

Your daily newspaper very likely will carry timetables and maps showing you when and where to look.

Getting everything ready — the moon itself, the instruments the rockets — is an enormous effort.

Consider, for example, the scientific reducing diet engaging Dr. Robert C. Paumann of the Naval Research Laboratory.

Weight is critical in getting a moon to the proper speed and altitude. The very first moon contains 50 different kinds of items, and each has been carefully weighed. Ball shell 4.80 pounds... one lock nut .028 pounds... a spacer washer .007... four microphones .138... four antenna rods .43... a pressure set valve .033...

It all adds right now to 20,358 pounds "but we're interested in saving even a thousandth of an ounce anywhere," Dr. Paumann says.

Once in the void, the satellite may live for days, weeks, or possibly even years, depending on altitude and speed, and what it meets.

But inevitably, this precious messenger must die. Air drag will bring it closer and closer to the earth until it whips down into the earth's thick blanket of air. Friction will turn it into an incandescent torch, burning, consuming, destroying it like a shooting star.

New, Light Missile For Planes Perfected

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Martin Co. has announced development of the Bullpup, a new air-to-surface missile designed for use by light attack planes against tanks and truck convoys.

Developed by Martin and the Navy, the Bullpup is about 11 feet long and weighs 600 pounds. It is to be suitable for both carrier-based Navy operations and shore-based Marine Corps use.

NOBODY KNOWS THE TROUBLE HE'S SEEN

JOSEPH FLEITZ sits at his nearly finished home on the Ohio-Michigan state line and looks at the world through woe-colored glasses as he contemplates the troubles he made for himself. He had to take out two building permits for the $35,000 house, and finally won a long battle for electricity after being bounced from state to state over federal rules. He has a Toledo address and had to put the meter in the Ohio third of the house. There are inter-state hassles over water and gas, too. When the house is finished, the Fleitzes and two sons will sleep in Ohio, daughter in Michigan. (International)

Underground H-Bomb Test Being Talked

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Atomic Energy Commission official said Tuesday the commission is working on a plan to test some atomic weapons underground. This would eliminate radioactive fallout.

Gordon M. Dunning of AEC's division of biology and medicine said that one of several plans for cutting down the fallout danger from weapons tests is to try "detonating nuclear devices so far underground that all of the radioactive material will remain captured."

Dunning spoke about AEC plans in testimony prepared for a Senate-Atomic Energy subcommittee. The group is studying fallout, the dropping back of radioactive substances hurled into the air by nuclear explosions.

Higher towers and balloons are being used in the current series of test explosions in Nevada, Dunning said. Other witnesses have testified that, in general, nuclear explosions produce less fallout the higher above the earth they occur.

The subcommittee was told Monday by Alvin C. Graves, the scientist in charge of weapons testing in Nevada and the Pacific, that there is no such thing as a "clean" hydrogen bomb.

Senators Report New Ike Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spokesmen for Ohio's senators reported Tuesday that for the first time they are getting a substantial amount of mail from constituents defending President Eisenhower's budget.

However, the office of Sen. Lausche (D-Ohio) said the mail from those wanting the budget cut still leads the support-the-budget people by about 60 to 40.

An aide to Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) said he had no figure on the mail, but said constituents are for the most part saying: "Cut it."

Man-Made Moon To Wear Top Hat, Trail a Train

Editor's Note: Following is the last in a series of articles telling preparations being made by America for the launching of a man-made moon.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the artificial moons speeding through space will wear a little hat.

And for a time it will be a three-car space train — composed of the satellite ball, a big inflated balloon, and part of the rocket that shoots it up. They'll whiz by one-two-three, in the same orbit.

Such as the plans, coming along well, for the third group of experiments with man-made moons.

Like all others, this moon will be round and shining. But it will contain a magnetometer, a device to measure magnetic currents. Part of the equipment will stick up out of the top like a round pipe, resembling a hat.

When this moon separates from its rocket, a plastic balloon wrapped around the connecting stem will be released, and be inflated by a little cylinder of gas. The balloon — 2 1/2 feet wide — will become another satellite.

This will probe the secret of how much air or gas there is in space.

Space is not quite a vacuum. Scientists believe there's so little air that each molecule of gas travels 12 1/2 miles before bumping into another molecule. (On earth, each air molecule travels only a tiny fraction of an inch before meeting another and popping off in a new direction).

Speeding 18,000 miles per hour, the little moons will bump into numerous air molecules, and this drag will slow them down. Even so, space is so devoid of drag that even the hat this one is wearing won't make much, if any difference.

The lightweight balloon will be 200 times more sensitive to air drag than the metal ball. The third-stage rocket becomes a satellite too, for a while, but is affected by air drag more than the moon itself, because of its weight. Only for a while will each "car" in this train keep the same orbit. Air drag will change their paths significantly.

Perhaps the balloon will be popped by a meteor like a boy using a pea-shooter.

Each one of the little moons will help answer another significant question — what is the exact shape of the earth, and its mass composition?

The earth is not a perfect

sphere. Variations in its pull of gravity, due to differences in its mass, will affect the orbits of the satellites. By special computations, such as can be learned about the shape of the earth, relative position of land masses, and even the composition of the earth's crust.

Once the orbit of a moon is known, scientists can take sightings on it and more nearly pinpoint the exact location of any spot on earth. Right now, distances between continents, or points at opposite sides of our globe, are in error by a number of feet.

In a main task, the moon with a hat will report new data about the deep mystery of magnetism. Great magnetic currents appear to exist out in space. Are they really there? And what causes variations in the earth's magnetic field? What's the significance? This moon can get answers, will have batteries to radio reports for 50 days.

Projects being considered for later moons could produce vital information concerning weather and climate. One moon could plot the amount and motion of clouds over the earth. Another could measure how much radiation comes to and escapes from the earth. Decisions should be made shortly on just what the fourth and subsequent moons will do.

Twelve special telescopes, manned by professionals and strategically placed around the world, will tune in on the moons and learn what air drag and gravity are doing to it.

With luck, you may glimpse the moon yourself, just after sunset, or just before sunrise. You'll probably need binoculars.

Your daily newspaper very likely will carry timetables and maps showing you when and where to look.

Getting everything ready — the moon itself, the instruments the rockets—is an enormous effort.

Consider, for example, the scientific reducing diet engaging Dr. Robert C. Paumann of the Naval Research Laboratory.

Weight is critical in getting a moon to the proper speed and altitude. The very first moon contains 50 different kinds of items, and each has been carefully weighed. Ball shell 4.80 pounds... one lock nut .028 pounds... a spacer washer .007... four microphones .138... four antenna rods .43... a pressure set valve .033...

It all adds right now to 20.358 pounds "but we're interested in saving even a thousandth of an ounce anywhere," Dr. Paumann says.

Once in the void, the satellite may live for days, weeks, or possibly even years, depending on altitude and speed, and what it meets.

But inevitably, this precious messenger must die. Air drag will bring it closer and closer to the earth until it whips down into the earth's thick blanket of air. Friction will turn it into an incandescent torch, burning, consuming, destroying it like a shooting star.

New, Light Missile For Planes Perfected

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Martin Co. has announced development of the Bullpup, a new air-to-surface missile designed for use by light attack planes against tanks and truck convoys.

Developed by Martin and the Navy, the Bullpup is about 11 feet long and weighs 600 pounds. It is to be suitable for both carrier-based Navy operations and shore-based Marine Corps use.

Robert Hunter Wins Rotary Service Award

The Washington C. H. Rotary Club's second annual "Service Above Self Plaque" was presented Tuesday to Robert Hunter, 17, Washington High School senior and son of Mrs. Edna Hunter, 913 S. North St.

Rotary President Robert Lisk made the presentation during the club's weekly luncheon meeting at the Country Club.

The student award is based, not on scholarship nor on athletic prowess, but upon the rendering of service—without thought of reward—wherever possible.

Hunter, who hopes to become a Watchtower Society missionary, has been active not only in his own church but in student affairs and organizational work.

Principal John Trace said he did an outstanding job as president of the WHS Student Council.

Hunter also was active in athletics and was a member of the Blue Lions football team until he was forced to withdraw because of a knee injury.

He plans to stay and work here in Washington C. H. for about two years before going on to missionary schooling in New York City.

Embezzler Indicted

CLEVELAND (AP)—A grand jury has indicted Mrs. Lillian Russell, 61, on a charge of embezzling from the Cleveland Society for the Blind, which formerly employed her as a cashier. Police said she has admitted taking about $64,000.

They were married Aug. 6, 1927, at Greenup, Ky., and have three children, only two of whom are minors.

Brake Failure Helps Cops Grab Youths

AKRON (AP)—Police gunfire and a chase by two police cruisers failed to halt a group of juveniles fleeing in an allegedly stolen car here, but brake failure was credited by police with helping to turn the trick.

When the brakes failed on one cruiser, it crashed into the fleeing car. Two 14-year-olds and one 16-year-old were sent to the detention home.

The car which helped in the capture was the second to enter the chase. The first had to be with drawn earlier—because of defective brakes.

Robert Hunter Wins Rotary Service Award

The Washington C. H. Rotary Club's second annual "Service above Self Plaque" was presented Tuesday to Robert Hunter, 17, Washington High School senior and son of Mrs. Edna Hunter, 913 S. North St.

Rotary President Robert Lisk made the presentation during the club's weekly luncheon meeting at the Country Club.

The student award is based, not on scholarship nor on athletic prowess, but upon the rendering of service—without thought of reward—wherever possible.

Hunter, who hopes to become a Watchtower Society missionary, has been active not only in his own church but in student affairs and organizational work.

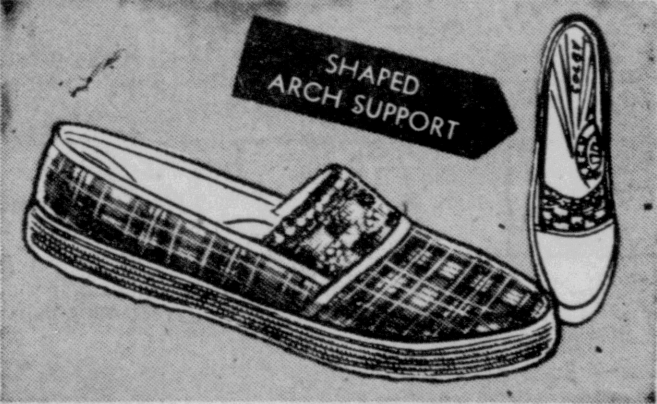

Principal John Trace said he did an outstanding job as president of the WHS Student Council.

Hunter also was active in athletics and was a member of the Blue Lions football team until he was forced to withdraw because of a knee injury.

He plans to stay and work here in Washington C. H. for about two years before going on to missionary schooling in New York City.

Girls Now Move, Remove Gracefully

KUALA LUMPUR (P)—Miss Rose Chan, Malaya's best known strip teaser, will soon be going to Japan to make a film on strip shows.

She said negotiations are now under way for making of the film in which she will appear with three other girls of her striptease troupe.

"I have trained all these girls in the art of undressing in public," she said pointing to them. "Before they came to me they did not even know how to move gracefully."

It took more than 35,000 years for the Niagara river to cut the seven mile channel from Queens-town to where the falls now are.

Ilona Massey Appears Again At Capital Social Affairs

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON (P)—When former movie star Ilona Massey first came to Washington as the bride of Donald Dawson, Harry Truman's former presidential assistant, she said she had given up the "glitter life" and was content to settle down as a Washington housewife.

"I am basically a very simple person," she told interviewers at the time and insisted she was "not going to jump into any social life."

True to her word, Hungarian-born Ilona kept herself so busy in her suburban, white brick home set in a five-acre wooded tract that local party-goers and celebrity-worshippers rarely saw her at all. In blue jeans she dug in her garden, walked with her black Great Danes, Nero and Hero, cooked up her Hungarian favorites, goulash and chicken paprika, and spent long evenings reading with her husband.

Even the neighboring shopkeepers didn't know she was around. Once when she went to the cleaner's, the clerk said: "My, you look like Ilona Massey."

"Well, that's nice," the actress replied with amusement, "because I am Ilona Massey."

It was not long, however, before Mrs. Dawson got caught up in the social whirl and she finally gave a reception at a local hotel for new friends from the capital's residential, diplomatic and congressional set.

It was then the voice of the real Ilona first became heard. She was loud in her protests over Queen Elizabeth's "lending respectability" to Communist leaders, Bulgarian and Khrushchev, on their 1956 visit to London. Mrs. Dawson explained she felt very strongly about Communists, that most of her family is in Hungary behind the Iron Curtain. She told reporters: "I thought it might be a good idea to be understood at the beginning. It would have been easy just to talk of fashions and little family events, particularly since I admit I don't have a deep knowledge of politics. I was just saying what I felt had to be said. At least I won't be a mistaken identify here."

In November, 1956, she got into the headlines by leading a demonstration outside the Soviet Embassy to protest Russian intervention in Hungary.

The actress has since appeared frequently on TV, and at benefits for Hungarian relief, and with her husband, is seen more and more disclosed, she had been offered a job to play a lady spy on a proposed cloak-and-dagger TV series.

Gourmet Takes Dim View Of Food Served in Capital

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON (U)—James Beard, internationally famed gourmet and cook book author, takes a dim view of the fare served up at Washington parties.
"If I lived here I'd take a box lunch," the rosey, roly-poly epicure told me as he picked at a crab ravigote during a luncheon meeting here.
"It's always roast turkeys and hams," he went on. "Everyone hires the same caterers, though I suppose you eat well at private residences and some embassies have their own great chefs."
Beard admits he lives to eat and eats to live. He prefers the food he whips up himself in the kitchen of his Greenwich Village apartment in New York. Here he tests and tastes recipes and dreams up new ones for his cook books and magazine food articles.

As food consultant for the French cognac industry, he was here to show us the "latest way to drink your dessert." Since it was strictly billed as a coffee and cognac party at 9 p.m., food was incidental and undistinguished by the Beard magic.
Guests were invited to sample several favorite versions of the coffee-cognac ritual with which the sophisticated continental dinner invariably polishes off an elegant repast. One called "Cafe Mayflower" added up to only 50 calories, "if you worry about such things."

This "drink Dessert" was made by adding one-half ounce of cognac (only 37 calories) and a teaspoon float of whipped cream (13 calories) to a cup of black coffee (NO calories!).
Best known of the coffee and cognac combine, "Cafe Royal" was also sampled by thirsty guests. Beard makes this by putting a lump of sugar in a teaspoon, dousing it in warmed cognac and Beard described as a "wedding of tastes and armors" and favored by the true gourmet, along with the even simpler method of lacing a half ounce of cognac with the java.

Some folks take their cognac without coffee. Sir Winston Churchill, for instance, drinks his with just a "splash of soda" according to Beard. The Duke of Windsor likes his "on the rocks," savored from a big brandy snifter. Actress Ava Gardner drinks hers with a dash of anise.
When a vessel helps another in distress, the company owning the aiding vessel is paid for the service and from one-fifth to one-third of the amount is given to the officers and crew.

German POW Returns To Prison Environs

SAGINAW, Mich. (U)—Gunter F. Ahrens, 37, was wounded in the chest and hip while a medical corpsman for the Germans in World War II.
He was captured by American soldiers and sent to a prison camp at nearby Caro, where he worked in beet fields for 3 1/2 years.
Today Ahrens is a barber not far from that prison camp. Ahrens, his wife and son, Norbert, 9, fled East Germany and were sponsored here by an uncle, Herman Pohlman of Saginaw.

'Yes', Says Famed School Architect Can Johnny Learn More From World around Him?

Will this vast expanse of window help or hinder pupils in this classroom? Architect Perkins believes this classroom he designed in Scarsdale, N. Y., brings the ever-changing outdoor scene close to the school room.

Central Press Assn.
NEW YORK—One entire wall of Johnny's school room is a window—will it make his mind wander from the work at hand?
In spring he can watch first-hand one of nature's greatest wonders—the lifeless winter foliage come to life. In the autumn, he can watch that same scene prepare itself for the winter's sleep. He can watch a soft rain soaking the thirsty earth, or warm shafts of sunlight bathing the world around him.
Is Johnny learning more because he can bask in these experiences from the vantage point of his school desk? Architect Lawrence Perkins, Chicago, one of the nation's leading school designers, thinks this is the very key to a complete education of our youngsters.
To back up his viewpoint he has written a book, Work Place for Learning. Perkins poses this challenge to the school designer: "Who can block the flight of an imaginative young mind with a high window sill?"
His answer, of course, is that it can't be done. In the youngster's continual struggle with the "adult world, the high window sill may present only another challenge and perhaps greater flights of fancy by his curious young mind.
This architect, who has had a hand in designing nearly 300 schools throughout the nation, has evolved this objective: "We make the world a part of every student's curriculum."
TO ACHIEVE this objective, Perkins says, he and his colleagues in modern school design have found it necessary to upset tradition.

Traditionally, he said, classroom design has been based on the assumptions that all students are right-handed, because all light comes from the left; that daylight beamed on a few rows is enough for the whole room; that teachers and students should never move into groups or change positions; and that the world around has nothing to teach.
He changes this by opening walls on all sides of the room to give light to both right and left-handed; desks movable so students can work either in groups or as a whole class, and the classroom and the school building are opened to the world around it—be it wooded glen or busy city street.
Versatility is the key to school rooms designed by Perkins. The library, for example, is more than a storage place for books, he says. It also should make reading a "pleasant and enriching experience."

IN HIS BOOK, commissioned by the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company, Perkins makes another break with tradition, criticizing fixed "scientific" lighting and pastel colors.
"The recipe for a pleasing classroom atmosphere, one that stimulates and encourages learning is at best nebulous," he says. "At least two additional ingredients however can be pinpointed: the fresh, ever-changing outdoor scene and bright color."
"Make the outdoors a part of the classroom, and paint walls or fixtures in vivid primary colors and you have done much to make the classroom a friendly, workable place."

Like most architects, Lawrence Perkins is an admirer of beautiful buildings. However, he insists that beauty is not necessarily an end in itself.
"BUILDINGS never fall down, they are torn down. Ugly buildings are torn down long before their physical usefulness has ended. The more beautiful will last longer, be loved and cared for... and the beautiful will make the greatest contribution to education," says Perkins.
Lawrence Perkins' concern for children and their schools is no accident. It has been his whole life.

The son of the late Dwight Heald Perkins, a noted school architect of another year, and Lucy Fitch Perkins, author and illustrator of a series of famous children's books, Lawrence Perkins found that "child centered" schools were the subject of much table talk of his noted parents over a period spanning more than two decades.
To Perkins, the school architect has two main objectives: to provide the educator the necessary tools for teaching, and to aid the "full development of each student's potentialities."

Gross Pitches 2-Hitter, but Redlegs Lose

Cincinnati Road Trip Victory String Snaps As Braves Chalk Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Some days you can't make a nickel. And Tuesday was one of those days for the Cincinnati Redlegs and Don Gross.

Gross, a 25-year-old left-hander, pitched one of his best games ever, walking one, striking out two and allowing just two hits. But he lost to the Milwaukee Braves 1-0—his first defeat since Sept. 8, 1955.

The Redlegs, who retained their two-game lead in the National League as the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers lost 3-2 in 11 innings at Pittsburgh, managed eight hits off Warren Spahn, but left seven runners stranded for their first defeat on the road in 16 games.

The Philadelphia Phillies, off on their biggest scoring binge since 1953, walloped the New York Giants 16-8. St. Louis defeated Chicago's Cubs 5-1.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox stayed two games in front, defeating Kansas City 3-1 while the second-place New York Yankees won 10 in 11 innings to beat Boston 8-5.

Cleveland nudged Detroit 4-3 on Eddie Robinson's two-run pinch homer in the ninth.

Gross, who had won eight since his last loss, had faced only 22 men before Bobby Thomson opened the Milwaukee eighth with a triple and came home with the clincher on a single by Frank Torre.

Spahn didn't walk a man while gaining his 38th career shutout with his fifth victory of the season.

The Dodgers missed their chance to gain ground on PeeWee Reese's throwing error at Pittsburgh. The Bucs shelled Don Newcombe, who had six consecutive complete games, with two singles and an intentional walk that filled the bases in the 11th. Then Bob Clemente greeted Clem Labine with a sharp grounder to Reese who threw high to the plate.

Richie Ashburn had four of the Phils' 17 hits off six Giant pitchers, and Rip Repulski, Willie Jones, Stan Lopata and winning reliever Bob Miller each drove in three runs. Johnny Antonelli lost his sixth.

Larry Jackson, a 25-year-old right-hander, allowed five hits, struck out eight and walked none while the Cards made nine hits off loser Moe Drabowsky and two relievers.

Rookie Bill Fischer snapped the A's winning streak at four games with a six-hitter for his third victory. An RBI single by Sherm Lollar, a double steal and a wild pitch by loser Rip Coleman gave the Sox two runs in the first inning, breaking a two-game Chicago slump.

Ted Williams' lone hit, his 11th home run, brought the Red Sox a 5-5 tie in the ninth at Boston, but the Yankees socked it away with three in the 10th, two on a Hank Bauer double. Art Ditmar won it in relief with Ike Delock the loser in relief.

Don Mossi made his first start to help Cleveland's injury-weakened pitching staff. He gave three hits in eight for his second victory. Ray Narleski worked the ninth, but had to escape a bases-loaded jam to save it. Two of the Tiger hits were homers, a solo shot by Ray Boone and a two-run job by Bill Tuttle.

Latest Boat for Fishermen Is 14-Foot Floating Saucer

By DION HENDEKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Maybe something is going to be done after all in response to the poor old fisherman's modest demands for a specialized boat.

At least, the Evinrude outboard motor people—who understandably have a certain interest in fishermen—have taken note of the situation by demonstrating a shocker in the boat business.

It's the Fisherman, a floating saucer—"14 feet in any direction"—that stirred up interest at earlier this spring. Last week, boat shows around the country earlier this spring. Last week, Evinrude put the outfit into the water at Milwaukee and contrary to observations heard at various exhibitions, it worked.

Powered by two moderate-sized outboards (18 horse, for the demonstrator) the Fisherman not only worked, but worked well.

Evinrude has no intention of building the Fisherman as a commercial project. Anyhow, it's not exactly what you'd call the answer to modest demands—being a $14,000 job with a fancy upholstered center lounge of "fishing chairs," and an electronic control panel with provision for the likes of underwater television, navigation scanners and such.

But it looks as little like a conventional boat as anything you can think of, and that's the idea. Says Howard Larson of Evinrude: "It was designed for only one purpose—to encourage boat builders to break from tradition and seek new concepts in design work."

Anglers have been lamenting of late that the big boom in boating has turned out brand spanking new equipment for every kind of boating but theirs. Since four out of five small boats now sold are primarily pleasure boats, it's not hard to see why the family craft, the cruisers and the runabouts have been getting most of the attention.

However, Larson says that what worked once before might work again. Two years ago, his firm commissioned a rakish outboard and bucket seats—sort of a sports runabout with sweptback fins.

Its influence now can be seen on nearly every popular inland lake—a situation for which waked-tossed anglers may not be particularly grateful.

But maybe the Fisherman will make the fishermen feel better.

Limping Tribe Set for Duel With Chisox

CHICAGO (AP)—The injury-riddled Cleveland Indians limped into town today for an important three-game series with the league-leading Chicago White Sox.

Boasting the best pitching staff in the major leagues at the season's start, the Indians are now relying on relievers, rookies and Early Wynn.

Wynn is the lone survivor of the Indians' big four. Herb Score is convalescing at Hagerstown, Md., from a severe eye injury caused by a hot ball. Bob Lemon is in Long Beach, Cal., nursing a pulled thigh muscle and Mike Garcia has a sore back.

In dire need of another pitcher, Farrell has considered dropping someone from the team so a hurler could be recalled from San Diego.

Wynn opens the series with Chicago today. The first game of tomorrow's double header will be pitched by Bud Daley, brought up from the West Coast after Score's injury. Dick Tomaneck, promoted from the bullpen during the pitching crisis, will hurl the nightcap.

The White Sox will send Dick Donovan to the mound today. Billy Pierce and Jack Harshman will pitch the doubleheader.

The hard-pressed Indians Tuesday defeated the Detroit Tigers 4-3 at Briggs Stadium.

Hillsboro Trotter Sets Lebanon Mark

LEBANON (AP)—Linda's Baby staged the biggest upset of the meeting at Lebanon Raceway Tuesday night. Rated a 70-1 longshot, the bay mare trotter broke stride at the start and was dead last moving into the first turn.

But under guidance of owner-driver Mason McConaughy of Hillsboro, Linda's Baby started a steady overhauling that produced a comfortable victory at the wire. For mutual backers, it was the longest price in track history—$149.60.

Dodgers, Giants Given Nod To Move to Pacific Coast

CHICAGO (AP)—The National League has opened the door to the Golden West for the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers.

Each of the eight baseball club officials Tuesday gave approval for this procedure:

"If New York and Brooklyn request consent before Oct. 1 to relocate their franchises in San Francisco and Los Angeles respectively, the league president is authorized to grant it."

A reported proposal that the Cincinnati Redlegs shift to New York was not considered at the league meeting.

It is not known when or if Presidents Horace Stoneham of the Dodgers will shout: "Westward ho!"

But it could be very tempting to do so.

Voters in Los Angeles Tuesday approved a 39½ million dollar bond issue to provide means to build a new city-owned stadium seating 60,000 in a 600-acre plot of the Chavez Ravine near the downtown district.

San Francisco has a five-million-dollar fund earmarked for a new stadium to entice the Giants. This is in contrast to the National League's pioneering fran-tier of the New York area consisting of outmoded Ebbets Field of the Dodgers and the Giants' Polo Grounds—both plagued by inadequate parking facilities, dwindling attendance, a 5 per cent amusement tax on admissions and soon-to-expire leases.

All this would seem that the pressure is on the New York fathers to do something pronto in the way of providing new playing sites if they don't want to lose.

The Dodgers have a clearer path to move West than the Giants because last February they bought the Los Angeles franchise of the Pacific Coast League and all its facilities from P. K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs and National League vice president.

The Giants will have to dicker with the Boston Red Sox for the San Francisco franchise.

And the PCL is reported to be ready for "a fight for its life" stand against the invasion. An official of the National League, who declined to be identified, said the PCL is prepared to demand from 8 to 10 million dollars damages.

Nothing can be done about moving a franchise until Oct. 1, the specified time limit to draft minor league territory under baseball law.

The first reaction of O'Malley and Stoneham to the National League vote was: "The league has given us a chance to explore all possibilities."

Last-Place WHS Nine Gains Experience for Next Year

By DAVID KORN

Even though the Washington C. H. Blue Lions finished in the cellar in the SCO League, Coach Herb Russell is not altogether unhappy about the past season. He believes that the boys gained some invaluable experience which they should be able to put to good use next year.

The Lions have a young team and they have potentially good pitching. The pitching failed to pan out at the first of the season, but came alive near the end of the year as right-hander Billy Herman twirled two straight complete games against Circleville and Greenfield.

With a little backing and a few more breaks he might have won both games but instead, they were transposed over to the defeat column. In the Circleville game all the Roundtowners' runs were earned.

Roger Shackelford, a lefty, also has a good fast ball and a natural curve, but had a lot of trouble with control. This is one reason why Shackelford did not pick up several victories during the course of the season.

WITH THREE freshmen in the starting nine, (Stillings, Huff, Lynch) and three more in ready reserve (Creeks, Callendar, Campbell), Coach Russell can look forward to next season with more enthusiasm.

Ronnie Knisley, catcher, is the only man lost by graduation. However, Jack Anders will be back next year to fill that position. Anders had to miss most of this season because of a broken ankle which he got while working out in the sliding pit.

'500' Race Expected To Be Thriller

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Auto racing fans, already lined up for miles around Indianapolis Speedway gates today, were assured that Thursday they'll see one of the greatest 500-mile races since Ray Harroun beat Ralph Mulford in the 1911 inaugural thriller.

Thirty-three drivers were set for the start.

Veteran drivers predicted a record of about 132 m.p.h.

Lee Wallard, who set the modern pattern of full-bore driving in the long grind, asserted "It's the most wide-open race in history."

Wallard charged from the start in winning the 1951 race, and wiped out the old idea of guessing the winning speed and then trying to maintain that average.

The 41st field is full of charging drivers who won't settle for anything but the lead as long as they're on the track. There are three of them in the front row—Pat O'Connor, who led 38 laps last year before his radiator burst; Eddie Sachs, a hot driver from the dirt tracks making his first Indianapolis start; and Troy Ruttman, the 1952 winner.

Maximum engine sizes were cut 10 per cent in an attempt to stop the yearly increase in speed. The reduction, or rainy, windy weather of this year's time trials, gave tomorrow's field an average qualifying speed of 141.444 m.p.h. compared with last year's record of 142.507.

Ortiz Is Favored To Trip Frenchman

Ortiz, 20, has scored nine knockouts. He will be meeting his toughest foe to date in Chioeca, 23, who went to Paris from his native Caracas, Venezuela.

Chioeca has won 25 of 33 starts in the last three years, and is credited with five kayoes.

Gross Pitches 2-Hitter, but Redlegs Lose

Cincinnati Road Trip Victory String Snaps As Braves Chalk Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Some days you can't make a nickel. And Tuesday was one of those days for the Cincinnati Redlegs and Don Gross.

Gross, a 25-year-old left-hander, pitched one of his best games ever, walking one, striking out two and allowing just two hits. But he lost to the Milwaukee Braves 1-0—his first defeat since Sept. 8, 1955.

The Redlegs, who retained their two-game lead in the National League as the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers lost 3-2 in 11 innings at Pittsburgh, managed eight hits off Warren Spahn, but left seven runners stranded for their first defeat on the road in 16 games.

The Philadelphia Phillies, off on their biggest scoring binge since 1953, walloped the New York Giants 16-6. St. Louis defeated Chicago's Cubs 5-1.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox stayed two games in front, defeating Kansas City 3-1 while the second-place New York Yankees went 10 innings to beat Boston 8-5.

Cleveland nudged Detroit 4-3 on Eddie Robinson's two-run pinch homer in the ninth.

Gross, who had won eight since his last loss, had faced only 22 men before Bobby Thomson opened the Milwaukee eighth with a triple and came home with the clincher on a single by Frank Torre.

Spahn didn't walk a man while gaining his 38th career shutout with his fifth victory of the season.

The Dodgers missed their chance to gain ground on PeeWee Reese's throwing error at Pittsburgh. The Bucs shelled Don Newcombe, who had six consecutive complete games, with two singles and an intentional walk that filled the bases in the 11th. Then Bob Clemente greeted Clem Labine with a sharp grounder to Reese who threw high to the plate.

Richie Ashburn had four of the Phils' 17 hits off six Giant pitchers, and Rip Repulski, Willie Jones, Stan Lopata and winning reliever Bob Miller each drove in three runs. Johnny Antonelli lost his sixth.

Larry Jackson, a 25-year-old right-hander, allowed five hits, struck out eight and walked none while the Cards made nine hits off loser Moe Drabowsky and two relievers.

Rookie Bill Fischer snapped the A's winning streak at four games with a six-hitter for his third victory. An RBI single by Sherm Lollar, a double steal and a wild pitch by loser Rip Coleman gave the Sox two runs in the first inning, breaking a two-game Chicago slump.

Ted Williams' lone hit, his 11th home run, brought the Red Sox a 5-5 tie in the ninth at Boston, but the Yankees socked it away with three in the 10th, two on a Hank Bauer double. Art Ditmar won it in relief with Ike Delock the loser in relief.

Don Mossi made his first start to help Cleveland's injury-weakened pitching staff. He gave three hits in eight for his second victory. Ray Narleski worked the ninth, but had to escape a bases-loaded jam to save it. Two of the Tiger hits were homers, a solo shot by Ray Boone and a two-run job by Bill Tuttle.

Latest Boat for Fishermen Is 14-Foot Floating Saucer

By DION HENDERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Maybe something is going to be done after all in response to the poor old fisherman's modest demands for a specialized boat.

At least, the Evinrude outboard motor people—who understandably have a certain interest in fishermen—have taken note of the situation by demonstrating a shocker in the boat business.

It's the Fisherman, a floating saucer—"14 feet in any direction"—that stirred up interest at earlier this spring. Last week, boat shows around the country earlier this spring. Last week, Evinrude put the outfit into the water at Milwaukee and contrary to observations heard at various exhibitions, it worked.

Powered by two moderate-sized outboards (18 horse, for the demonstrator) the Fisherman not only worked, but worked well.

Evinrude has no intention of building the Fisherman as a commercial project. Anyhow, it's not exactly what you'd call the answer to modest demands—being a $14,000 job with a fancy upholstered center lounge of "fishing chairs," and an electronic control panel with provision for the likes of underwater television, navigation scanners and such.

But it looks as little like a conventional boat as anything you can think of, and that's the idea. Says Howard Larson of Evinrude: "It was designed for only one purpose—to encourage boat builders to break from tradition and seek new concepts in design work."

Anglers have been lamenting of late that the big boom in boating has turned out brand spanking new equipment for every kind of boating but theirs. Since four out of five small boats now sold are primarily pleasure boats, it's not hard to see why the family craft, the cruisers and the runabouts have been getting most of the attention.

However, Larson says that what worked once before might work again. Two years ago, his firm commissioned a rakish outboard and bucket seats—sort of a sports runabout with sweptback fins.

Its influence now can be seen on nearly every popular inland lake—a situation for which waketossed anglers may not be particularly grateful.

But maybe the Fisherman will make the fishermen feel better.

Limping Tribe Set for Duel With Chisox

CHICAGO (AP)—The injury-riddled Cleveland Indians limped into town today for an important three-game series with the league-leading Chicago White Sox.

Boasting the best pitching staff in the major leagues at the season's start, the Indians are now relying on relievers, rookies and Early Wynn.

Wynn is the lone survivor of the Indians' big four. Herb Score is convalescing at Hagerstown, Md., from a severe eye injury caused by a batted ball. Bob Lemon is in Long Beach, Cal., nursing a pulled thigh muscle and Mike Garcia has a sore back.

In dire need of another pitcher, Farrell has considered dropping someone from the team so a hurler could be recalled from San Diego.

Wynn opens the series with Chicago today. The first game of tomorrow's double header will be pitched by Bud Daley, brought up from the West Coast after Score's injury. Dick Tomanek, promoted from the bullpen during the pitching crisis, will hurl the nightcap.

The White Sox will send Dick Donovan to the mound today. Billy Pierce and Jack Harshman will pitch the doubleheader.

The hard-pressed Indians Tuesday defeated the Detroit Tigers 4-3 at Briggs Stadium.

Hillsboro Trotter Sets Lebanon Mark

LEBANON (AP)—Linda's Baby staged the biggest upset of the meeting at Lebanon Raceway Tuesday night. Rated a 70-1 longshot, the bay mare trotter broke stride at the start and was dead last moving into the first turn.

But under guidance of owner-driver Mason McConaughy of Hillsboro, Linda's Baby started a steady overhauling that produced a comfortable victory at the wire. For mutual backers, it was the longest price in track history—$149.60.

Dodgers, Giants Given Nod To Move to Pacific Coast

CHICAGO (AP)—The National League has opened the door to the Golden West for the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers.

Each of the eight baseball club officials Tuesday gave approval for this procedure:

"If New York and Brooklyn request consent before Oct. 1 to relocate their franchises in San Francisco and Los Angeles respectively, the league president is authorized to grant it."

A reported proposal that the Cincinnati Redlegs shift to New York was not considered at the league meeting.

It is not known when or if Presidents Horace Stoneham of the Dodgers will shout: "Westward ho!"

But it could be very tempting to do so.

Voters in Los Angeles Tuesday approved a 39½ million dollar bond issue to provide means to build a new city-owned stadium seating 60,000 in a 600-acre plot of the Chavez Ravine near the downtown district.

17-Year Locusts

Carson home, and all at once I was aware I was in locust country, and how!

IN ONE WOODS there was not a sound, and in the next woods 200 yards further down the road there was the sound of countless numbers of locusts.

Halting at the R. E. Purcell home, which is in the midst of the noise, I found no one at home.

The next house was that of J. B. Wain, and turning into a short lane found Mr. and Mrs. Purcell and Wain working a sizeable garden.

A large sycamore tree on the Wain lawn was covered with cicada shells and some live locusts, and the din from the nearby woods was startling.

WE COLLECTED half a pint of shells and live locusts and I brought them back to show those who were not familiar with the insects. Buildings on the Wain farm were covered with locust shells.

Continuing my search for locusts I found none along the Ghormley Rd. as far east as the Good Hope Rd.

I learned that they were in woods southeast of Nathaniel Tway's home on Walnut Creek, 2 1/2 miles southeast of New Martinsburg, and were in woods a mile south of the Ghormley Rd.

I encountered several persons who were in the hill region Sunday, and they informed me that in some places the locusts were crushed on the highways, by the thousands, and the noise was most disconcerting.

WHILE THE LOCUSTS are in very little of the county this year, they are in parts of Montgomery,

MISS MARIE MARCHANT

Butler, Hamilton, Warren, Clermont, Greene, Clinton, Highland, Brown, Adams, Pickaway, Ross, Pike, Scioto, Jackson, Lawrence, Gallia and Meigs counties.

D. Lyle Goleman, Ohio State University extension entomologist has this to say about the insects:

SEVERAL THOUSAND may emerge from under a single tree. The air is filled with the shrill singing of the males (females do not sing). After mating, the females deposit eggs in twigs and small branches. A single female may lay 400 to 600 eggs. Twigs in which eggs have been deposited often break or are killed.

Cicada do not feed on foliage of any kind and therefore do not destroy field crops, according to the OSU expert. They prefer oak, hickory, apple, pear, peach and grape for egg-laying.

The eggs which have been deposited in the twigs hatch in six to seven days. The ant-like young then drop to the ground and enter the soil where they spend the next 17 years.

Superstitions about the cicada, such as that its sting will kill a person, or that the W-shaped markings on its wings indicate a war, are pure fable, Goleman says.

Infestations of the 17-year locusts are expected in the northeastern half of the United States in 1957, 1961, 1962, 1963, 1964, 1965, 1966 and 1967.

I learned Wednesday that in the Cedarhurst area near Rock Mills there are many of the locusts — far north of the general east and west line of infestation.

Oil Well Deeper Than any Before In This Area

The drill in Kewanee's first test well in Fayette County is now down nearly 500 feet farther than any previous well ever drilled in this area. The depth posted at 8 a. m. Wednesday was 2,432 feet.

This included 104 feet drilled during the past 24 hours, a little less than the distance drilled the 24 hours ending at 8 a. m. Tuesday.

It was necessary to replace the worn bit during Tuesday night. So nearly a half score bits have been discarded and new ones installed.

One of the 7 1/2-inch diameter bits being used in the drilling has been placed on display under the bulletin board, but this time it has been fastened to a chain and the chain placed about a fence post to make certain it is now carried away for a souvenir.

Efforts are being made to locate a 9-inch bit valued at $75 or more, which was taken from beneath the bulletin board some 10 days ago.

Stone chips have been added to the driveway leading into the field, so it is now possible for spectators to enter the field and drive up to the fence about the drilling outfit and park near the derrick.

Vacation Bible School Scheduled

Blue Rock Low On Rt. 28 Job

The Blue Rock Paving Co., Inc., Washington C. H., is the apparent low bidder on the resurfacing of 12.96 miles of State Route 28 in Buckskin and Twin townships, Ross County.

Blue Rock bid $98,782 on the project, far below the state's estimate of $121,412. The job is to be completed by Oct. 1.

The section of highway to be resurfaced runs eastward from Lyndon to Route 50, west of Chillicothe.

There is evidence that polo was played many centuries ago in China, Japan, Persia and Tibet, but it reached England about 1860.

Cigarette Licenses

Now Total 145 Here

At the May 27 deadline, 145 cigarette licenses had been taken out in Fayette County. County Auditor Harry Allen reported.

This compares with 148 at the same time last year and 179 at the end of the year.

Licenses may be taken out all through the year, Allen said in explaining why there 31 more had been issued between May 27 last year and the same date this year.

New licenses are due May 27.

Oil Well Deeper Than any Before In This Area

The drill in Kewanee's first test well in Fayette County is now down nearly 500 feet farther than any previous well ever drilled in this area. The depth posted at 8 a. m. Wednesday was 2,452 feet.

This included 104 feet drilled during the past 24 hours, a little less than the distance drilled the 24 hours ending at 8 a. m. Tuesday.

It was necessary to replace the worn bit during Tuesday night. So nearly a half score bits have been discarded and new ones installed.

One of the 7 1/2-inch diameter bits being used in the drilling has been placed on display under the bulletin board, but this time it has been fastened to a chain and the chain placed about a fence post to make certain it is now carried away for a souvenir.

Efforts are being made to locate a 9-inch bit valued at $75 or more, which was taken from beneath the bulletin board some 10 days ago.

Stone chips have been added to the driveway leading into the field, so it is now possible for spectators to enter the field and drive up to the fence about the drilling outfit and park near the derrick.

Blue Rock Low On Rt. 28 Job

The Blue Rock Paving Co., Inc., Washington C. H., is the apparent low bidder on the resurfacing of 12.96 miles of State Route 28 in Buckskin and Twin townships, Ross County.

Blue Rock bid $98,782 on the project, far below the state's estimate of $121,412. The job is to be completed by Oct. 1.

The section of highway to be resurfaced runs eastward from Lyndon to Route 50, west of Chillicothe.

There is evidence that polo was played many centuries ago in China, Japan, Persia and Tibet, but it reached England about 1860.
